

PARALYSIS GRADUALLY CREEPING OVER BRITAIN AS GENERAL STRIKE OF UNION WORKERS BEGINS

Two Men Shot, Woman Trampled at Five Points

THOUSANDS SEE SHOOTING AFFRAY IN HEART OF CITY

J. W. Smith, White, May Die From Bullet Fired By One Negro at Another.

WOMAN INJURED AMID EXCITEMENT

Pierce Hill Wounded Three Times by Jim King Who Is Arrested After Attempting to Escape.

Two persons were wounded by a fusillade of bullets, a woman was knocked down, trampled and bruised and thousands of homebound shoppers and workers were thrown into excitement at Five Points in the heart of the business district early Monday night.

Police arrested the negro who fired the shots and rushed the three injured persons to Grady hospital, after which they managed to clear the jam of vehicular and pedestrian traffic that resulted from the affray.

The shooting took place at 6:30 o'clock Monday night just as thousands were boarding street cars and automobiles for home after the day's work. Nearly an hour's work was necessary to restore traffic to normal.

J. W. Smith Near Death. The negro who did the shooting, according to his own confession to police, was Jim King, of 102 Martin street, who fired the shots at another negro, Pierce Hill, 26, of 48 Old Wheat street, who King claimed had engaged in a difficulty with King's wife.

Three of the bullets fired by King took effect in the body of Hill, but the wounds were not regarded as fatal. Two bullets entered Hill's right thigh and the third inflicted a wound in the left shoulder.

A stray bullet struck J. W. Smith, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Smith, of 506 Sycamore street, Decatur, and he was rushed to Grady hospital in a dying condition.

After the negro King had fired the shots he attempted to escape by fleeing into the Kimball house. As he did so he knocked down and ran over Mrs. M. E. Crenshaw, of 611 North Boulevard, who also was taken to Grady hospital suffering from severe bruises.

The bullet which struck Smith as he stood in the Peachtree entrance to the Kimball house entered the left hip and lodged in the abdomen. His condition was reported grave by physicians at Grady. Mrs. Crenshaw's injuries were not regarded as serious, though she suffered a severe nervous shock.

The firing began when King en-

SMITH EXONERATED OF ANY BLAME IN GIRL'S DEATH

Frank H. Smith was exonerated Monday by the Fulton county grand jury of any blame in connection with the death of Miss Virginia Montaine, who was killed in an automobile accident on Powers Ferry road April 22. Miss Montaine was in the car with Smith when it overturned, it was said.

An indictment was drawn against Smith charging murder but after considering evidence in the case a no-bill was returned.

Columbus Paper Awarded Pulitzer Prize for 1925

MR. AND MRS. JULIAN HARRIS. Editor of The Columbus Enquirer-Sun and his wife, Julia Collier Harris.

ATLANTA'S ZONING REGULATIONS VOID BY COURT'S ACTION

United States Supreme Court Declines Appeal On Prohibition of Stores In Residential Sections.

Washington, May 3.—(Special.)—Atlanta's zoning law was declared unconstitutional in effect today, when the United States supreme court refused to review the decision of the Georgia supreme court, which held that the zoning ordinance was not constitutional.

The review was asked by the city of Atlanta in the case brought by Mrs. Chauncey Smith, a property owner, who was refused an injunction against the city by the superior court of Fulton county, and took the case to the state supreme court, which held that the zoning ordinance and the enabling act passed by the state legislature both were unconstitutional, and granted an injunction against enforcement of the ordinance.

In its argument for a review, the city contended that most of the legal decisions annulling zoning ordinances have affected ordinances which had no enabling acts to support them.

Mrs. Smith wished to erect business buildings on property she owned on Piedmont avenue near Boulevard Park, and action was brought against her on the ground that the zoning law prevented business buildings there, as it was restricted under the city law to residences.

The city held that the law was entirely legal. Mrs. Smith, in her brief, Fight Against Klan, Evolution Law, Dishonest Officials and Lynching, Wins National Prize.

New York, May 3.—(AP)—The Pulitzer gold medal for the most distinguished and meritorious public service rendered by an American newspaper during 1925 has been awarded the Columbus, Ga., Enquirer-Sun.

The judges announced that the award was made for the paper's "brave and energetic fight against the Ku Klux Klan, against the enactment of a law barring the teaching of evolution, against dishonest and incompetent public officials, against lynching and for justice to the negro."

JULIAN HARRIS, FORMER ATLANTIAN.

Award of the Pulitzer gold medal for the most distinguished and meritorious service of any American newspaper in 1925, to the Columbus Enquirer-Sun as announced from New York today brings into national view Julian Harris, editor and owner of that paper, whose editorials and activities during last year in various public affairs won for him this prize, which is one of the highest honors that can come to any newspaper man in America.

Along with this award also came additional recognition of Mr. Harris' achievements in the editorial field in his nomination as a member of the advisory board of the Pulitzer School of Journalism at Columbia university to succeed the late Solomon B. Griffin, of the Springfield, Mass., Republican. News of the bestowal of both honors has been received by Mr. Harris and he has accepted them with the stipulation that his wife, Julia Collier Harris, share them equally with him.

Both Mr. Harris and Mrs. Harris are natives of Atlanta and lived here many years. Mr. Harris is a son of the late Joel Chandler Harris, the beloved "Uncle Remus" of the south, while Mrs. Harris is a daughter of the late Charles A. Collier, former mayor of Atlanta, and for many years one of the city's most prominent business men.

Two High Awards. Once each year the Pulitzer prize committee meets and makes prize awards in various branches of newspaper work. These prizes were provided by the late Joseph Pulitzer, owner of The New York World and the prizes cover the entire field of journalism. The prizes awarded The Enquirer-Sun and Mr. Harris are the highest awards in the power of the committee to bestow.

Appointment to the advisory board of the School of Journalism at Columbia university is another high honor which is awarded to leaders in journalism. A third recognition of Mr. Harris' editorial work came in an invitation he has received to attend the meeting of the Academy of Political Science which will be held

Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, Nominated From Floor, Withdraws Just Before Balloting Begins.

NATIONAL P.-T. A. MEET OPENS TODAY

Delegates To Parent Body From All Parts of Country Here for Opening Today.

BY MAINER LEE TOLER, Constitution P.-T. A. Editor. Election of Mrs. P. H. Jeter, of Decatur, as president, and adoption of a number of resolutions dealing with problems affecting children, parents and schools featured the closing session late Monday of the Georgia Parent-Teacher association. Seven vice presidents and other officers of the state body also were named.

With the close of the one-day state association session Monday afternoon, the National Parent-Teacher association convention will get under way formally this morning, the national body's program unofficially being inaugurated Monday night at a banquet on the Ansley roof, attended by over 800 persons. The national convention will be in session through Saturday, and will be attended by many of the outstanding women of the United States.

Mrs. Jeter's name was brought in by the nominating committee and placed before delegates to the state convention. Mrs. Z. V. Peterson was nominated from the floor by Mrs. J. L. Field, and the nomination seconded by Mrs. James Pefinis. Everyone but accredited delegates were excluded from the convention hall and balloting started in an executive session. After all other officers had been elected by acclamation, Mrs. Peterson arose and requested that her name be withdrawn. Mrs. Jeter was unanimously elected.

One of the most important resolutions adopted during the day was one protesting alleged discrimination by certain colleges in the country against entrance of Jews to such institutions. The resolution of the Georgia Parent-Teacher body urged that "children of all creeds be permitted to enter schools of America."

Other officers elected follow: First vice president, Mrs. J. J. Hofmayer, Albany; second vice president, Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, Atlanta; third vice president, Mrs. Fred West, Savannah; fourth vice president, Mrs. Charles A. Hilburn, Macon; fifth vice president, Mrs. Duncan Burnett, Athens; sixth vice president, Mrs. Joe Dan Miller, Gainesville; seventh vice president, Miss Kathleen Dozier, also of Gainesville. The report of recording secretary will be filed by Mrs. A. F. McGhee, of Macon, and the corresponding secretary's office will be handled by Mrs. James C. Layton, of Columbus. SIMMONS SCORES ADMINISTRATION FOR 'STINGINESS'

North Carolina Democrat Declares Public Buildings Bill Is Inadequate And Wasteful.

Washington, May 3.—(AP)—The administration was denounced today by Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, for having a "stingy, petty economical theory of economy."

The public buildings bill, he declared was inadequate, uneconomical and wasteful. The bill places $155,000,000 in the hands of the secretary of the treasury to spend as he sees fit, and is not as satisfactory as the former so-called "pork barrel" legislation.

"The economical Mr. Coolidge approves the plan to issue $250,000,000 in bonds to pay claims caused by the destruction of the Lusitania by the Germans when we have only a remote chance of collecting even the interest from the Germans," he continued.

"We give our allies 62 years to pay their debts and we are trying to rush the payment of our national debt in 10 years; but if this bill is passed as it is now written it will make 20 years since we will have appropriated any money to meet the needs of public buildings."

"This alleged prosperity is impoverishing 45 per cent of our population, represented by agriculture. The farmers are almost on bended knees begging congress for succor from bankruptcy. They can't pay the high artificial prices caused by the high tariff wall and business combinations."

ILLINOIS OFFICIAL NOW IN CHARGE OF GANG PROBE

Attorney General Carlstrom Directs Investigation at Request of State's Attorney Crowe.

Chicago, May 3.—(AP)—Charged by the court with the task of forestalling "a reign of terror" in Chicago, a special grand jury set out today to fix responsibility for intergang warfare which culminated last week in a triple murder whose principal victim was Assistant State's Attorney William H. McSwiggan.

Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom, of Illinois, intervening at the request of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, took charge of the panel after it had been sworn and instructed by Judge William V. Brothers, acting chief justice of the criminal court.

An inquiry of possible relation of the gang warfare with politics was suggested by the fact that the first two witnesses to appear before the grand jury were Coroner Oscar Wolff, political foe of the state's attorney, and Harry Eugene Kelly, president of the United League club, of Chicago, and an advocate of an inquiry into gangster's possible relationships with law enforcement officials.

State's Attorney General Carlstrom will conduct the inquiry with the assistance of the state's attorney's office.

Judge Brothers told the jury that at least nineteen of twenty murders since January 1 are what might be termed gang murders. He recounted the use by the slayers of sawed-off shotguns, rifles and machine guns; the commission of all the murders by night, and refusal of victims to name their slayers, even when they could.

"The primary motive inspiring the gangs," said Judge Brothers, "appears to be indissolubly linked with illicit traffic in liquor and beer."

"If the present condition of affairs continues much longer, without the intervention of the state and its police hand of the law, a reign of terror will be upon us. Mob rule will prevail."

FALL ELECTIONS EXPECTED TO GIVE PROHI SENTIMENT

Reports Indicate No General Change in Sentiment at This Time as Result of Prohi Hearings.

DRY LAW IS ISSUE IN PENNSYLVANIA

New York To Hold Referendum in Fall—Georgia Overwhelmingly Dry, Says Mrs. Williams.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER. (Copyright, 1926, by United News.) Washington, May 3.—The extensive hearings on prohibition recently completed by the senate judiciary subcommittee had the effect of stirring up interest on both sides in many sections but they appear to have caused no general change in sentiment, according to reports furnished by representatives of the United News throughout the country.

In several states a definite registration of sentiment will be obtained in the fall elections either through referendums or through candidates contesting on the liquor issue. Following is a summary of reports from eastern states:

MASSACHUSETTS—Evidence presented to senate committee is not expected to have any effect. Former Senator David I. Walsh, democrat, is to oppose Senator Butler, republican, in the coming election, but prohibition, according to best informed politicians, will be kept out of the fight if possible. Walsh is supposed to be expected to force the issue.

CONNECTICUT—Connecticut never ratified the 18th amendment and the senate here hearings merely intensified the sentiment. Federal agents and state police are active in running down bootleggers but officials get little cooperation and juries very seldom convict a man for bootlegging.

It is not believed the hearings will have any effect on enforcement, but they may force Senator Bingham to come out flatly as a wet in the campaign this fall. He has been on the fence with wet leanings and the republican organization has done its best to keep prohibition out of politics here.

NEW YORK—Chief interest has now become centered on the prohibition referendum to be taken along with the fall elections. Sentiment among wet democrats in New York city became so strong that upstate dry republicans were induced to take up the proposal for a referendum in order to test opinion officially.

PENNSYLVANIA—Prohibition is the principal issue in the senatorial primary to be held May 18, with Representative Vore a pronounced wet. Senator Pepper a "law enforcement" dry, and Governor Pinchot a bone dry. Pepper's alliance with the Mellon interests gives a wet cast to his candidacy in the eyes of the voters despite his declaration that he is a "college republican."

Pepper republicans have declared their candidate must be nominated "to uphold Secretary of the Treasury Mellon," and Pinchot is making a sensational attack on both of them. Although many political complications are present in the triangular contest, the man in the street views it as essentially a fight over prohibition. Vore was a witness in the senate hearings and Pinchot sent a letter to the committee defending prohibition. Pepper took no part.

GEORGIA—Sentiment is overwhelmingly dry and Mrs. Marvin Williams, vice president of the Georgia W. C. T. U., reports an aroused sentiment for enforcement as a result of the hearings. Calls are received daily for permission to organize new chapters. Former members who had lost interest in prohibition after the enactment of the Volstead act and younger women who never had joined, are becoming active. Prohibition Director Day, at Atlanta, has noticed no reaction except increased interest on both sides.

FLORIDA—Whether by coincidence or intent, a vigorous spirit of enforcement activity began about the time the senate hearings started. Philip F. Hambley, prohibition administrator for Florida, has been unusually active in all sections, making large seizures, many arrests, and otherwise showing results in enforcement work. Three seaplanes are being put into operation against rum runners along the coast. Padlocks were used for the first time in one Tampa suburb where liquor was being sold openly. Since the senate committee completed its work, interest apparently has waned, but enforcement officers are continuing their activity.

LEADERS OF LABOR SING "RED FLAG" AS MEETING ENDS

Day of Unprecedented Effort To Reach Agreement, Preventing Strike, Ends in Failure.

ROYAL AIR FORCE TO COLLECT MAIL

Workers Decide To 'Jam' Government Wireless Stations To Prevent Broadcasting News.

BY UNITED NEWS.

The first of 4,000,000 workers included in the general strike order to British labor laid down their tools Monday as the country-wide walkout became effective.

Railways, shipping and newspapers of the United Kingdom were first affected when the strike began at midnight.

A last dramatic effort by the house of commons to avert the strike failed in the final hour.

J. H. Thomas, secretary of the railwaymen's union, who had been closeted alone with Premier Stanley Baldwin in a peace discussion until 11 p. m. Monday, wept as he announced that the strike must occur.

The first disorder occurred in Fleet street shortly after midnight, a raid on the office of The Morning Telegraph.

Strike leaders declared that the country's industries would be gradually paralyzed by the strike, while government spokesmen confidently predicted victory in what Premier Baldwin said was "close to civil war."

The International Federation of Trades Unions announced its war-chest was at the strikers' disposal, but said the British trades union congress had funds sufficient to hold out five weeks without support.

Trades union officials estimated officially that 4,342,982 men are striking.

The trades union congress struck its first blow after the general strike order by directing members of the electricians' union to "jam" the government wireless station during the hours set aside for broadcasting news.

AMERICAN MINERS TO DISCUSS STRIKE

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., May 3.—(AP)—The executive board of district No. 1, United Mine Workers of America, will hold a special session at Scranton tomorrow, to discuss the British coal strike and also to consider the contents of letters received from the leaders of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain. This was announced tonight by Rinaldo Cappellini, president of District No. 1.

Mr. Cappellini saw no prospect of a sympathy strike on the part of the anthracite miners. To The Associated Press he said:

"We cannot abrogate our contract with the anthracite operators. The anthracite miners have had their strike."

He also stated that he was not prepared to discuss the contents of the letters received from the British mine federation or to predict action to be taken.

COLUMBUS PAPER AWARDED PRIZE

at Briarcliffe Manor, near New York, May 10, which is composed of 100 selected editors and journalists of the country, and to which The Constitution is invited.

In awarding the high prize to The Enquirer-Sun, the committee considered the campaign waged by that paper against religious intolerance, against masked activities of klansmen, in favor of fairness for the negro and for a clearer, fairer and more business-like handling of public affairs by the states.

Began Work on Constitution. Beginning as a "cub" reporter on The Constitution, Mr. Harris served 17 years on this paper, filling the posts of reporter, news editor, night editor, city editor and managing editor, with the exception of five months which he spent on The Chicago Times-Herald for the purpose of learning how a metropolitan newspaper was conducted.

In 1907 Mr. Harris left The Constitution to become general manager and then editor of Uncle Remus Magazine, serving in this post until 1912. In 1913 he went abroad and returned in 1914 to fill the post of Sunday editor of The New York Herald. The next year he became editor in charge of the European edition of The Herald after serving a brief period as a traveling manager of The New York Evening Telegram.

Returning to the United States in May, 1917, Mr. Harris entered the training camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., and won a captaincy in the army, serving as captain until December, 1918. He then became assistant to the managing editor of The New York Herald, and then, from April to December, 1919, served as Paris correspondent of that paper. From December, 1919, until March, 1920, he served as editor and general manager of the European edition of The New York Herald. In November, 1920, Mr. Harris bought half interest in The Enquirer-Sun and in January, 1921, bought control of that paper. In November, 1922, he purchased all outstanding stock and took up the duties as editor, with Julia Collier Harris as assistant.

Most of the success of The Enquirer-Sun has been due to the work of Mrs. Harris, whose pen name is Julia Collier Harris. She has contributed editorials and articles on art, literature, music and education which have brought distinction to the paper. She has stood with her husband through his numerous campaigns, many of them bitterly fought, and has assisted him in every way to carry them to success. She is a contributor to The Nation, The Journal of Social Forces, Books (the literary supplement of The New York Herald-Tribune) and has also written several notable books, among them "The Life and Letters of Joel Chandler Harris," which have won international acclaim.

Mr. Harris states his case. When news of the award of such a high honor to a Georgia editor was received The Constitution telegraphed

Mr. Harris for an article outlining the work of his paper, 1922, which attracted attention of the Pulitzer committee and which won such high approval from that committee. He then prepared the following article for The Constitution:

JULIAN HARRIS TELLS STORY OF HIS CAMPAIGN.

BY JULIAN HARRIS,
Editor of The Columbus Enquirer-Sun.

The Enquirer-Sun, which was this week awarded the Pulitzer gold medal for the "most disinterested and meritorious public service rendered by any American newspaper during 1925," is the smallest morning newspaper in Georgia in point of circulation, and, as population goes, is published in the fifth city in this state. It was founded in 1828 by Mirabeau Lamar, the first vice-president of the republic of Texas, who was its editor. At one time it was owned and edited by Beale Richardson, uncle of Frank Richardson Kent, Washington correspondent of The Baltimore Sun, and a young man Kent worked as a reporter on The Enquirer-Sun.

For the past five years I have been the controlling owner of The Enquirer-Sun, and since the fall of 1922 have been both editor and general manager. Associated with me in the ownership and editorial management is my wife, Julia Collier Harris, the author of the "Life and Letters of Joel Chandler Harris," and the "Foundling Prince." In addition to her work on The Enquirer-Sun, to which she contributed editorials and articles on literature, art, education and music, she has written for The Nation, The Journal of Social Forces, and The Journal of the University of North Carolina, and has had articles in The Baltimore Evening Sun, The New York Herald-Tribune, and The Atlanta Constitution. To her is due a large share in all the fights made by The Enquirer-Sun. She is a trained newspaper woman, and, as such, is intelligent. She is vice-president of The Enquirer-Sun company.

From the moment I assumed editorship of The Enquirer-Sun, the original program of a fight against the cowardly masked gang, broadened out. My first editorial was entitled "Putting Out a Fire With Gasoline," and criticized adversely Judge George P. Munro in connection with the change of venue for a murder case. I was arrested and brought before the court on the charge of contempt, and there stated my views of what a newspaper should stand for, and the imperative need for a free press. I was dismissed with a warning; the judge was defeated at the next election.

For more than five years The Enquirer-Sun has fought the Klan denouncing it as 100 per cent un-American and as a cowardly masked gang which attempted to usurp the rights of constituted authority and foment racial prejudice and religious intolerance. With the exception of a small afternoon daily and a couple of weekly papers, The Enquirer-Sun carried on a lone fight. Finding no other Georgia newspaper intended to print The New York World's expose of the Klan, The Enquirer-Sun did so. Twenty per cent of its circulation disappeared and the air and the mails were burdened with anonymous threats. The Columbus chapter of the Klan as a final gesture paraded about 300 strong, masked and robed and carrying placards which contained such Christian sentiments as "America for Gentiles," "Down with the Jews," "Down with the Negro." The fight against the Klu Kluxers was continued until the local Klan dwindled to the point of disappearing from public notice. The original chapter disbanded and efforts to get any strength have failed. Its first and last entry into local politics resulted in a 4-to-1 defeat.

Along with the fight against the Klan, The Enquirer-Sun took up the cudgels for religious tolerance and justice to the negro. In the face of what I call "a banal and overworked slogan of 'It's great to be a Georgian,'" which the present governor either originated or adopted, The Enquirer-Sun has told without reserve what it believes to be the truth about the state, using such captions as "The Empire State of Illiteracy," "The Lynching of a Lunatic Negro," and "Thirteen Little King Canutes." This last being the opening gun of The Enquirer-Sun's campaign against the anti-evolution bill which was recommended for passage by the so-called legislative committee on education. In this fight, in which Julia Collier Harris' article played a leading part, The Atlanta Constitution and The Macon Telegraph joined wholeheartedly. Believing that religion and the theory of evolution do not conflict, and feeling that a sort of hysteria fostered by uninformed but sincerely religious persons was absurd, my wife and I saw in the Dayton trial the news story of the year. We covered the trial together, both by mail and by wire, and The Enquirer-Sun was the only Georgia newspaper with special representatives handling the news of the Tennessee heresy trial. Georgia legislators made a feeble flutter in 1925 to bring up the bill to prohibit the teaching of the theory of evolution, but so many Georgia newspapers opened fire on them that the matter was dropped. No word was heard of it in the extra session just ended and it is not likely that the movement will ever again gain the strength it possessed in 1924, shortly after Bryan, to quote The Enquirer-Sun, "Exhorted the Georgia legislators to kill scientific progress and substitute revelation for investigation."

Governor Walker and the Klan.

It was The Enquirer-Sun which uncovered the fact that Governor Clifford Walker, of Georgia, after publicly announcing that he was going to Philadelphia for a rest, had sneaked to Kansas City and was the star figure at the national Klan meeting. With him were Commissioner of Agriculture Brown and State Game Warden Twitty. The Enquirer-Sun noticed in an Associated Press dispatch which quoted the "governor of a great state" as making a speech, and in an excerpt from the speech appeared the phrase "bridging the chasm." Recognizing this as a favorite location of Governor Walker's, The Enquirer-Sun wired its Atlanta correspondent to ask the governor if he had not attended the Klan meeting. Walker refused to say "yes" or "no." The Enquirer-Sun then, on The New York World to aid it in establishing the fact that Governor Walker had lied about the Philadelphia trip, and had actually gone to Kansas City. The World verified the truth of The Enquirer-Sun's assumption, and the editor of The Enquirer-Sun gave the facts to Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution. The Constitution showed the governor that he had been trapped, and Walker admitted he had lied further, he confessed, as The Enquirer-Sun had been charging for several years, that he was a Klansman. He was joined in his confession by Brown and Twitty. Tumulty and Franklin Roosevelt wrote open letters literally lashing the governor. Walker promised to answer them, but he has uttered no word in reply. In the meantime the Klan is losing its grip, suckers are no longer unenlightened and masked cowardice does not command a premium.

The Enquirer-Sun has insisted and still insists that the negro must be treated with exact justice. I do not believe that there is any logic in telling outsiders that the negro has the mind of an adolescent and must be treated like a child, and then lynch the child. If his actions had been motivated by the trained brain of a Harvard professor, his lynching is in a sense a minor evil, in that it does not crossing, but is in itself a crime as horrible, so cowardly and so infamous that it must eventually disappear from all decent, Christian communities. It is the long string of smaller injustices against the negro which mount up. As I have said editorially, the negro barber shop episode in Atlanta, where the masked gang is in its last stronghold and police brutality, gives an idea of what is in the minds of too many whites.

The Enquirer-Sun has been attacked by other Georgia papers for making public Georgia's weaknesses and for criticizing mercilessly her defects. One Georgia editor invited me to leave Georgia, but I refused to go. It is because of my love for Georgia that I will not re-echo the wailing cry, "Georgia is no worse than any other state." I contend that I am striving to have it said of my native state and am devoting all my life to that end—that "Georgia is the best state in the union."

EDITORIAL GIVEN SPECIAL PRAISE.

The editorial from the Enquirer-Sun selected by the judges for special commendation, was as follows:

"WELL—WHO CARES?"

From the Columbus Enquirer-Sun, August 25th, 1925.

John Holder, fired by the governor, and in two audits shown to be guilty of gross incompetency, borrowing state funds for personal use, wasting Georgia's money for expenses, and hiring newspaper men to write favorable articles, had all his actions officially O. K.'d by the state senate. The verdict amounts to saying to Holder, "Go on and sin some more." Who cares?

John Brown, commissioner of Oiltulure, backed by the president of the senate and a group of patriotic, public-spirited senators, killed the distillation bill which carried with it the reduction of the number of oil inspectors from 186 to 6 and a consequent saving of $100,000 a year to the state. The state will lose $200,000 if the system is scotched at the next session of the legislature. If the same number of oil inspectors hold jobs the state will have lost a million dollars in ten years. But the number will probably be increased and the state will lose more. Who cares?

Georgia stands at the bottom of the list of states with a per capita expenditure of $5.34 for education. The state legislature spent most of its time swapping votes on local bills, and scheming to save the scraps of Holder and Brown. So Georgia still stands at the bottom of the list in educational expenditure and at the top in illiteracy. Who cares? The child welfare code was rejected by a legislature composed largely of men whose minds are still adolescent and whose interests in our future citizens is nil. What if children cannot help themselves, or that they are the victims of conditions, which only legal action can cure? What if the turnover in youthful criminals is increasing? Who cares?

H. J. Fullbright, tax commissioner, finding that the duties of his office could be attended to by the revenue department, resigns. Governor Walker appoints his former campaign manager, James H. Dozier, to succeed Fullbright. Dozier's term of office is six years and he will receive about $25,000 of the tax-payers' money. Who cares?

The Klan is frantically opposed to negroes and terrorizes them. Men attired as Klansmen have beaten and maltreated negroes. Calvin Coolidge, republican president, and follower of Lincoln, appoints a member of the Klan—a leader of the notorious masked gang—as collector of port at Savannah. The Klan is thus encouraged by President Coolidge to continue its vicious and cowardly attitude toward negroes. But they are only negroes. Who cares?

Claude West, thief and forger, got away with $140,000 of the state of Georgia's money. He was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary, and was pardoned last week after serving four years. "Mule" Hicks, an ignorant 17-year-old negro, stole a mule worth less than $100, and was sentenced to serve 20 years at hard labor. After serving 12 years he was still in the chain-gang, and as a result of his treatment attempted to escape. He was convicted of murder and sentenced to hang, although not a witness to the killing. "Mule" is a negro. Who cares?

Crosby Williams deliberately shot down Horace Flanders, editor of The Supton (Ga.) News. Following the charge of Judge Eschel Graham, the jury convicted the would-be assassin of a misdemeanor. Williams was sentenced to one year at the state farm. He was pardoned at the end of nine months, both the solicitor general and the judge signing the petition for clemency. W. E. Boatwright, editor of The Swainsboro Forest Blade, wrote an editorial in which he attacked the judge and the jury. This was after the case was out of court and Williams was out of jail. Judge Graham cited the editor to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt of court. Perhaps we are wrong in our belief that there is in existence an ancient, out-of-date document, called the constitution, which says something about freedom of speech.

and liberty of the press. Who cares? Yes, indeed. Who cares? Why should anybody care? Isn't everything all for the best? For didn't that justly noted fundamentalist, Pippa, say, long ago, truly notwithstanding.

"God's in His heaven, all's right with the world." At least, Robert Browning quoted her as expressing that sentiment. So she must have said it; and it must be true, all earthly evidence to the contrary notwithstanding.

PULITZER PRIZES ARE ANNOUNCED

New York, May 3.—Nine Pulitzer prizes, having a cash value of $8,000 besides a $500 gold medal, and four traveling scholarships worth $1,500 each were awarded to newspapers, writers and students by the Pulitzer prize jury Monday.

In the field of letters, Sinclair Lewis, the novelist, received $1,000 for his novel, "Arrowsmith," judged as the best presentment of the "whole-some" atmosphere of American life and the highest standard of American manners and manhood.

"Craig's Wife," by George Kelly, produced at the Morosco theater in New York, was credited as being the original play which best "represented the educational value and power of the stage in raising the standard of good morals, taste and manners." The author was given $1,000.

Edward M. Kingsbury, of the New York Times, was awarded $500 for his editorial, published December 14,

1925, entitled "The House of a Hundred Borrows." The editorial was an appeal for New York's "hundred neediest cases."

For the best example of a reporter's work during the year, William Burke Miller, of the Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal, received $1,000 for his work in connection with the story of the trapping in Sand Cave, Ky., of Floyd Collins.

D. R. Fitzpatrick, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch was given $500 for the best cartoon in any American newspaper in 1925. His cartoon, "The Laws of Moses and the Laws of Today," was published April 12, 1925. The drawing pointed out the multiplicity of present day laws.

For the best book of the year on the history of the United States, Edward Channing was awarded $2,000. The sixth volume of his "History of the United States" which appeared in 1925 was entitled "The War for Southern Independence."

MRS. JETER NAMED STATE P.-T. A. HEAD

James Callaway, Columbus; Mrs. George Howson, Atlanta, and Mrs. Bruce Carr Jones, of Macon.

Mrs. Jeter, the new state parent-teacher leader, has been active for many years in the work, and is well known throughout the state. She is the wife of P. H. Jeter, member of the firm of John Silver & Co., of Atlanta, prominent in business circles. Before her marriage she was Miss Floy Oliver, of Plains, member of an old and influential Georgia family. She is a graduate of Wesleyan college, at Macon, and of the Curry School of Expression, of Boston.

Hits Dry Law Change.
The convention enthusiastically endorsed a resolution opposing the proposed change in the Volstead act, the resolution commending the efforts of the W. O. U. T. U.

The resolution presented by Mrs. Lawrence Kelly, of Savannah, that the Georgia P.-T. A. use its influence to have the reported ban lifted which was said to bar Jewish students from entering some of America's largest colleges was unanimously adopted.

Other resolutions which were passed provided:

That approval of "narcotic education" as a means of reducing drug addiction be commended;

That "temperance day" in the fourth Friday in March;

That state superintendents of instruction be asked to appoint a committee, including two representatives from among school music supervisors, college music departments, private music teachers, the State Parent-Teacher association and the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs, to give formal recognition to the study of music as a major activity, this act to be put into operation by the first semester of 1926 in September;

That the State P.-T. A. recommend to state and local boards of education that one or more school periods be devoted to the study of forestry;

Urges History Study.
That April 20 be observed each year honoring the few remaining Confederate veterans and in memory of those veterans who are deceased, rather than a day for athletic sports, urging a careful study of southern history;

That fire prevention rules in schools be enforced by having all buildings made of a standardized plan of construction, and that all schools meet with specific safety requirements, whether publicly or private owned, and that all schoolhouses be so constructed as to protect the youth of the state, both white and colored;

That children be protected in going to or from schools by buses, and that all drivers of school buses or trucks should be of mature age, sober and reliable and that drivers come to a complete stop before railroad stations and crossings, this resolution being sent to the National P.-T. A. congress for consideration.

Great National Body.
The convention sent greetings to the National P.-T. A., which convenes in Atlanta this morning for the remainder of the week, and congratulations on the splendid representation in attendance. Forty-seven states are represented, the largest number of states ever having sent delegates to a national convention.

Fifth District Wins.
The fifth district was awarded the banner for having organized the largest number of associations since the last convention, 38 new associations having been added during the year.

The Lee Street School P.-T. A. won the silver loving cup donated by the Savannah Press to the Georgia branch to be used as a trophy for that association contributing the largest amount of silver loving cups.

The sixth district, where most of the work is centered in Macon, was awarded the silver loving cup donated by the Macon Telegraph as the trophy for contributing the largest amount of silver loving cups.

Prior to the close of the convention delegates stood for a moment in silence in respect to the late Mrs. Harriet Birney, founder of the Parent-Teacher organization. Mrs. Birney was a Georgia woman.

Committee Recommendations.
The following recommendations made by the state executive board were accepted: That all state P.-T. A. publicity be given either the stamp of approval by the state publicity chairman, district publicity chairman or sectional manager for publicity; that the state P.-T. A. endorse the resolution from the president of the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs—Mrs. N. P. Bailey, of Savannah—endorsing steps taken by the state board of education looking to training in common schools in the elementary rudiments of vocal music, and that the same be placed in the same category as academic subjects and that due credits be allowed for uniform and standardized work of this nature.

The executive board also recommended that it be allowed to urge on chairmen of legislation work for adoption by all women's organizations of a plan to have legislation ready by January preceding sessions of the legislature; that P.-T. A. members refrain from personal lobbying at the state capital; that they depend upon authors of bills and information of local organizations to unite in conducting an information bureau at the capital in charge of a person who will do no lobbying but distribute information on request and keep supporters of laws posted as to their progress through committees and the houses of the legislature.

President Sends Message.
A letter from President Coolidge extending greetings to the members of the national congress of Parent-Teacher Associations was read here Monday night at a banquet opening the 30th annual convention of the organization.

Delegates from every state in the union were present, and everything was in readiness for the first business session tomorrow morning. The convention will continue through Saturday.

The letter from President Coolidge, which was addressed to Mrs. A. H. Reeve, of Ambler, Pa., president of the national organization, follows:

"Please extend my greetings to the members of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers and my best wishes for the success of their work."

"One of America's great needs today is for fathers and mothers who can and will train their boys and girls properly and guide them successfully through the formative years. More and more we are coming to realize that parenthood requires preparation for its sacred and important duties."

"It is encouraging to note the growth of interest in the business of being a parent. Your organization can do much to insure fine citizenship for the future by exalting and preaching the duties of a consecrated parenthood."

Mrs. Charles A. Hilburn, past president of the Georgia branch of the National Congress of Mothers and Teachers, presided as toastmistress of the Monday night banquet.

What I Expect of the Boy of Fourteen

In a special message to the State and National P.-T. A. convention, Arthur Dean, whose daily article on "Your Boy and Your Girl" appears in The Constitution, discussed this subject as follows:

Right at the start, I expect him to be a boy—not a cherub, not a little old man, not a sneak. Just plain undifferentiated boy. I expect that he stands well on his feet, looks you in the eye, tells you the truth; that he sleeps when he sleeps, works when he works, plays when he plays; that he swims like a duck, runs like a deer, sees like an eagle; that he plays fair on the field, at the school, in the home; that he likes a dog, delights in woods and fields, believes in comrades; that he admires real men, stands by his heroes, looks up to his mother; that he sees in a violet, a sparrow, a worm, the touch of the hand of God.

Furthermore, I expect that the boy has a father as well as a mother, a few brothers and sisters, a wise teacher or two; that his father remembers that he was once a boy; that his mother tempers all her abiding love with justice; that his home is more than a pantry and a bed; that his school is more than a recitation period; that his teacher sees something beyond marks; that his church is more than a form.

But my expectations are more than one-sided or two-sided; they are many-sided. I rather suspect that the boy expects a few things himself. He expects that his parents are sturdy, responsible, clean; that fresh air is in his sleep, at play, in school; that he is fed at least as sanely as horses, cows and hens; that his desire for activity is turned from deviltry into useful knowledge, productive labor, wholesome play; that his parents reverently tell him of the functions and care of his beautiful body; that he is taught obedience and right thinking by example as well as by preachment; that his capacity, interest and native ability are studied and wisely directed; that the idealism of his adolescence is nurtured as though it were the voice of God. In fact, he expects that every hour out of the twenty-four is a step forward in his educative process, and that the task of educating him is more than a school affair.

There is yet more. Beyond my expectations or his expectations, there are our expectations. You and I—everybody. He is our boy. He is to be our Michel Angelo, our Thomas Edison, our Abraham Lincoln, our first citizen, our great good man. It is for us to give him his chance to be great, good and god-like.

It is for us to give him a parentage untainted by disease—social, civic or industrial. It is for us to give him his rightful heritage of playgrounds, of good schools, of clean cities. It is for us to close the door of the corner saloon, the dive, the vulgar show. It is for us to prevent his exploitation in sweatshop, factory or store.

Our boy cannot run the race with his feet tied. He cannot do it all. He will do his share. We must do ours. Now let's all push and pull together, then we shall find that our boy meets my expectations, his expectations, our expectations.

Girl Gained 7 Pounds Nine Years An Invalid

That's just what McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets did for the Babcock Girl—and in doing so much for tens of thousands of thin, underweight, weak and discouraged people all over America.

These sugar-coated, pleasant-to-take tablets should be given to children instead of the vile, stomach-upsetting oil itself—they surely do help the frail, delicate little ones and 60 tablets cost but 60 cents at Jacobs' Pharmacy Co., or any druggist.

Read this letter if you have a child that needs to gain health and strength:

"My little girl was stricken with infantile paralysis when she was 5 months old and was an invalid for 9 years—when I saw an ad in the paper that McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets would build up wasted tissues. I bought a box and she gained very slowly at first and after taking eight boxes, she gained seven pounds. Thanks to McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, after trying almost everything else on the market. She is on the road to recovery and goes to school every day."

Mrs. L. Babcock, Appleton, Wis.

Imitations of McCoy's may be offered, but be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine and, if after thirty days' treatment you are not delighted with results—why, get your money back.—(adv.)

DRY CONDITIONS FOUND 'WIDE OPEN' IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, May 3.—(AP)—A group of dry agents brought to this city by the new administrator, Frederick C. Baird, found local saloons running "wide open" Captain Yates D. Fetterman, deputy administrator of this district, said today.

The agents designated as "under cover men" arrived late Saturday and immediately went to work. They were brought from Pittsburgh and will continue to gather evidence of violations.

Thomas J. Cavanaugh, chief aide to Administrator Baird, announced that uniformed enforcement patrolmen mounted on motorcycles will be seen throughout eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey soon.

"The men will be in uniform," he said, "so there will be no doubt as to their official standing, and carry pistols."

DETECTIVES CAPTURE CAR AND NEGROES

Within 30 minutes after an expensive sedan, owned by A. J. Roohan, was reported stolen from an apartment parking lot at his residence, 1206 Peachtree street, Detectives A. Lamar Poole and S. A. Smith Monday night arrested a negro who gave his name as James Albright, of Columbus, Ga. Detectives stated, however, that the negro was named Johnson, and that he had been driving the sedan with five negro women as occupants on Piedmont avenue, late Monday night.

Furnished with a good description of the car by Roohan, detectives sighted the car at Piedmont avenue and Houston street, and gave chase for three blocks. The negro finally was captured and is being held under charges of suspicion, pending further investigation at police station.

It was the sixth stolen car to be recovered by Detectives Smith and Poole this month at an average of two cars a day. These two led detectives last month with a record of 30 cars recovered.

THOUSANDS WITNESS FIVE POINTS SHOOTING

countered Hill on Peachtree street almost in front of the Kimball house. Without warning the negro began firing, precipitating immediate confusion and excitement among the packed throngs of downtown pedestrians.

Flee to Kimball.

After the shooting, King fled into the Kimball house, throwing away his revolver, knife and cap and running over Mrs. Crenshaw. Patrolman C. G. Hughes and Frank Chatham, on patrol duty at Five Points, were drawn to the scene by the sound of the shots, and gave chase to the fleeing black.

They encountered him as he was trying to escape from the basement of the hotel, whereupon King confessed that he had fired the shots. He said that the negro, Hill, had repeatedly threatened his life and gave the officers a letter purporting to be from Hill in which the latter is said to have threatened King.

At Grady hospital on the operating table in the colored ward, Hill denied this claim. He said King had threatened to kill him after accusing him of stealing a pistol from King about a week ago. Hill claimed that in reality King's wife had hidden the weapon for her own protection.

Officers were unable to recover the knife and the pistol which King admitted discarding in his flight, but they found the negro's cap. He was lodged in a cell at police headquarters on a blanket charge of suspicion pending the outcome of injuries to the two persons he shot.

ATLANTA ZONING REGULATIONS VOID

claimed that she had been damaged. The state supreme court granted an injunction under the "due process of law" requirement of the constitution.

OTHER GEORGIA CITIES AFFECTED.

Decision of the United States supreme court in refusing the city of Atlanta an appeal from the decision of the supreme court of Georgia holding unconstitutional and void the zoning act in so far as it prohibits erection of stores in residential sections, means that other municipalities of the state which have adopted such ordinances cannot enforce them.

Courtland S. Winn, assistant city attorney, said Monday night that he had not seen the complete ruling of the United States supreme court and that he was not familiar with just what its effect will be. He said that if a hearing was refused on the writ of certiorari, the United States court held that the supreme court of the state is final authority, and this in effect would void the whole ordinance.

The litigation was started in Atlanta when Mrs. Chauncey Smith, owner of a tract near Boulevard Park, sought to develop the area into a warehouse site. She was prevented temporarily by the city zoning ordinance and sought relief in the courts. The case was handled in the Georgia courts and the nation's highest tribunal by Attorney George Spence and the firm of Little, Lowell, Smith & Goldstein. The property owner's contentions were upheld by both courts.

Mr. Spence said Monday the principal contention of Mrs. Smith was that a business place was not a nuisance and that police powers of a municipality or state did not permit prevention of the opening of a place of business. If such a place of business proved to be a nuisance, it could be abated, he explained. Mrs. Smith claimed that the zoning ordinance resulted in confiscation of property without due compensation.

The supreme court held that since the Georgia courts had ruled the law unconstitutional, there was no reason for it to consider whether the act violated the federal constitution.

COUNCIL OF WOMEN OPPOSE TWO POLICE

Resolutions opposing proposed appointment of either Captain Grover C. Fain or Captain A. J. Holcomb, of the Atlanta police department, to the vacancy which would be left by the resignation of Acting Chief of Police E. L. Jett, which has been rumored in press reports, were unanimously adopted by members of the Civic Council of Women at a called meeting Monday morning in the city council chamber, according to Mrs. J. R. Andrews, president of the association.

More than 40 women of the city, representing every ward in the city and various organizations, were present at the meeting, it was said. Representatives were also present from Decatur and East Point, it was stated.

During the discussions preceding adoption of the resolution, it was pointed out, according to officials of the women's council, that both of the two named members of the police department lacked the qualifications which a chief of police should possess. Copies of the resolutions were sent to members of the police committee of city council, to churches over the city and various other organizations, it was stated Monday night.

"FULTON FOLLIES" TO SHOW TALENT IN HIGH SCHOOL

Graduates of Fulton High school rallied Monday in support of plans of the student body for a mammoth "Follies" production on the new stage at Lakewood park Friday night, May 14. "The Alumni-as Association," the only active organization of its kind connected with a southern high school, underwrote the sale of 2,500 of the 7,500 tickets to be sold for the production. The other 5,000 are to be sold within the next 10 days by the student body itself.

The "Follies" is to include more than 100 members of the student body in singing, dancing, comedy and miscellany, each of the 20 numbers staged by a different student organization or class to disclose the wealth of talent in the school. The support of 500 members of "The Alumni-as Association" was secured after the last entertainment at the school last month when it was decided that a production should be given in the biggest show place in Atlanta so that as many people as possible could see it.

The production is being directed professionally and the numbers have been adapted by professional directors for a "Follies" type show, all of 20 acts being compressed into a period of little more than an hour.

WHY use fresh eggs, milk, creamery butter and other high-grade ingredients and then ruin the flavor of your cake, or other dessert, by using an inferior pure Vanilla compound, or imitation.

LAW ENFORCEMENT STRESSED BY JUDGE

Rigid enforcement of the prohibition laws was urged Monday by Judge E. E. Pomeroy in his charge to the Fulton county grand jury for the May term. It was the first charge Judge Pomeroy has given since his appointment to the bench.

In his charge he paid high tribute to the late Judge George L. Bell, "a knight of the old school, prince among men, a friend without guile and a man of boundless mercy."

"He was a great and good judge and illustrated the best in our government and among our people," Judge Pomeroy said.

Judge Pomeroy also charged the jury as to the high type of service and importance of jury work. This kind of work is one of the highest types of public service and should be shared by no one, he declared.

Speaking on enforcement of dry laws he said, "There should be no mitigation for the repeal of laws when it is only a cloak for non-enforcement. Prohibition laws should be enforced to the extent of the ability of all courts, jurors and citizens. Anarchy results when law is not enforced."

If a child
doesn't like oatmeal, win over with famous
"Quaker Flavor"

THE reason some children don't eat their oatmeal without urging is that they're not given the right kind.

There is a great difference in the flavor of oats. And flavor, above all things, is needed to win a child's appetite.

Quaker Oats has a unique flavor; a rich and toasty flavor you'll find in no other brand. That is why millions will accept no other kind.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats—which makes laxatives less often needed. Protein, carbohydrates, minerals, vitamins and this "bulk" make Quaker Oats an excellent food balance.

Today, get Quick Quaker (cooks in 3 to 5 minutes), or regular Quaker Oats as you have always known them. Grocers have both kinds.

Proctor Enters Missouri Race On Dry Ticket

Kansas City, Mo., May 3.—The prohibition issue has been injected into the race for the republican nomination for United States Senator from Missouri.

Predicting that it would be the outstanding issue in the campaign, David M. Proctor, of Kansas City, who is a power in political circles, has announced that he will seek the republican nomination in the August primaries on a dry platform pledged to law enforcement.

Proctor will oppose Senator George H. Williams, of St. Louis.

Williams has a formal statement on his views on the wet and dry issue as a wet by political observers.

In announcing his candidacy Proctor said flatly that he would seek the nomination on a dry platform.

"In the contest between the opposing forces over prohibition," he said, "you can classify me as a dry."

"I will observe a solemn oath to support the constitution of the United States and all of the amendments thereto, including the eighteenth. I will not vote for any legislation that will whittle away or weaken the prohibition law, either in letter or in spirit."

Republican leaders throughout Missouri who have been urging Proctor to enter the race point out that the rural sections of the state which are dry have been seeking a dry candidate with some strength to whom they could rally.

COUNCIL REFUSES POWER OVER CHIEF

A move to wrest the power of selecting Atlanta's chief of police from the police committee of council and to place this authority solely in the hands of mayor and council failed Monday when council voted almost unanimously to table the proposal of Alderman Allen Couch, of the fifth ward.

The paper was introduced by Mr. Couch, who had waged a one fight to have it passed. It provided that "hereafter the mayor and council alone shall select the chief of police."

The proposal met a storm of opposition, led by Councilmen Horace Russell, W. E. Saunders, John White, Dr. C. J. Vaughan and Alderman Guy Dobbs.

Charging that the proposal was the outgrowth of a meeting held earlier in the day and that it was a direct thrust at the present police committee, Alderman Dobbs and Councilman Russell assailed the proposal as wrong in principle and declared that it should be forever tabled in order that council should not again be plunged into a discussion of this kind.

Councilman Saunders declared that the people of Atlanta are tired of having council always in a wrangle over who shall elect the police chief, and begged council to kill the move and not to begin all over again argument of a question which it has already settled definitely.

Other members attacked the measure from many angles and asserted that if council did not have confidence in the police committee it should select another, but that the committee is the one and only proper authority to name the head of the police department.

Councilman Roberts
Elected Unanimously
And Begins His Work

Harry Roberts, a prominent member of the Typographical union, Monday was elected unanimously to succeed M. F. Dowdy, councilman from the sixth, who has resigned his position on account of pressing business.

Mr. Roberts had no opposition. He was placed in nomination by Councilman Harry York, Mayor Walter A. Sims presided during the election.

Mr. Roberts was given the oath by Mayor Sims and immediately assumed his seat with council, voting on all measures coming before that body after he was sworn in. The new councilman, prominently connected in labor circles, is well known in fraternal organizations. He is connected with the composing room of The Constitution.

1,000 Men Battle Forest Blazes In North Carolina

Asheville, N. C., May 3.—(AP)—A series of serious forest fires continued unabated today while more than 1,000 men and boys, many of them conscripted, fought to save thousands of acres of valuable timber in western North Carolina.

The fight, which has been going on for several days, seemed today to have made no progress against the flames, which, fanned by high winds, leaped barriers which had been calculated to check the steady spread.

Appeals for help have been sent to all surrounding towns and neighborhoods for all available able-bodied men and boys to assist in the fighting.

When calls for volunteers yesterday failed to produce a sufficient number of men, McDowell county authorities authorized Deputy Sheriff George Fleming and fire wardens to press into service as many men as were needed. By nightfall they had conscripted more than 600, they reported.

The Catawba game reserve, one of the show places in western North Carolina, was said to be a tangled mass of blackening embers.

A fire on the famous Biltmore estate, near here, raged unchecked and great damage to timber was done near Waynesville, in Haywood county.

Little relief is promised by the weather bureau in the form of a rain which would tend to check the flames.

The telephone company maintained all-day Sunday service in the fire area yesterday and planned to put forth greater efforts today, as an aid to those who are directing the fight.

35 ORGANIZATIONS
URGE HOME FOR CITY

Thirty-five large local, state and national organizations have endorsed the movement for erection of a national soldiers and sailors' home in Atlanta. Sam C. Crane, secretary of the local committee, announced Monday.

Although European problems are confronting congress, there is a slight chance that the bill authorizing the home will be passed at the present session, the secretary stated. Georgia representatives have advised Mr. Crane that if the bill is not acted upon soon, they will make arrangements to urge its passage at session beginning in December.

Mrs. Karlen suffered from heart disease and had been despondent over her condition, Mr. Karlen said.

Who remembers this old song?

"BABY, dear—listen here—I'm afraid to go home in the dark!" Fear of the dark is a human instinct that goes back to the stone age, when men lighted fires to keep panthers and other fast-moving traffic away from the main corridor of their caves.

Most children fear dark bedrooms. It's an excellent idea to provide them with a good flashlight, which banishes the inherent fear of darkness. And it's just plain common sense to give them the best flashlight made—a genuine Eveready!

You have heard it—"they are all good automobiles"

THE impression is current that all cars sold at approximately the same price give approximately the same results. But there never was a time in motor car history when there was less basis of fact for such an impression.

Today, there are two ways of building motor cars. One is to forget quality and build cars for trading purposes. The cost of production is cut to the bone, so that dealers may offer you more than the market value for your used car.

The Buick way is to build for quality's sake—to give owners a better new car—full of value—with every modern feature.

Compare Buick design with that of other cars of the same or higher list price, and fix Buick superiority firmly in your mind, before you spend your money.

Many Pretty Girls Entering Constitution Dance Contest

Ta, ta, tarrah tum tah dee—Sound familiar? Yes, you guessed it. It's the first strain of the popular "Charleston" dance number, and a lot of pretty Atlanta girls are humming it right and day, now preparing for the big "Charleston" beauty tournament to be staged all next week at the Howard theater by The Constitution and the Public Theater corporation.

Already a sizeable group of girls has entered, and every day the number is being increased as entrants sign up for the contest in the office of the Howard theater. It is open to all girls in Atlanta or anywhere else in this territory between the ages of 16 and 25, and some unusually attractive prizes will be awarded.

There's a first prize which should appeal to every girl who wants to get a chance at real stage dancing with a bona fide New York musical company production. An engagement of 12 weeks with the John Murray Anderson production of "Charleston," to be presented in New York at the Rivoli theater the week of June 15, is the first prize, and it is a salary of $75 a week and a ticket to New York.

For attractive girls who, for any reason, cannot accept the engagement to go to New York, there are other tempting prizes, one is $100 in gold, a third prize of $50 in gold and a fourth prize of a three months' pass to the Howard.

John Murray Anderson's Charleston production will be presented in 12 cities where Public theaters are located. The winner of the Atlanta contest will visit all these cities and will end the trip in Atlanta the week of September when the production will be offered at the Howard.

Contests will be staged daily at the Howard next week, one in the afternoon and one at night. After these elimination tests, the finals will be held Saturday night, May 15.

$35,000 RAISED, JEWRY RALLIES

Coincident with the announcement Monday night that a total slightly in excess of $35,000 had been raised during the past 36 hours in Atlanta's campaign for $150,000 as this city's quota in the nation-wide $15,000,000 United Jewish Relief campaign, came the statement from Armand May, general chairman of the Atlanta committee, that more workers are urgently needed.

Mr. May's statement follows: "The eyes of the south are directed towards Atlanta on the success of its drive for $150,000. Atlanta Jewry should be the leader of southern Jewry. What Atlanta does, so does the balance of the south. What Atlanta gives will be the standard for the rest of the south."

Campaign for Life.
"We have approached the zero hour in the greatest humanitarian campaign in the history of the world, and I am confident that our army of volunteers, with your help, will go over the top."

"The battle in which we are now engaged is not a battle in which blood will be shed or lives will be destroyed. It is a battle to save lives and to rebuild them. It is a battle to staunch the tears of countless thousands of the helpless, some of them no doubt, of our own flesh and blood. It is an army for whom the enemy waits with eager, outstretched arms. It is an army that will be welcomed in every home, and will be sent away with a rich bounty of contributions and blessings."

"It is a blessed army engaged in a blessed task, and the Jews and non-Jews of Atlanta will reward them for the sake of those for whom they are battling."

"The voices of the agonizing millions ring in our ears. Let's give as we never gave before. Give so we will be proud of our own deeds and be honored by our accomplishments."

"In this campaign there will be some who will tell you that they are 'tired of giving.' Those on the other side can truthfully say that they also are tired of giving—of giving themselves, their homes, their hopes, their lives, their children, their fathers and mothers—having given these during and after the world war, with which they had not the slightest relation, except that they sacrificed their lives for all the nations involved in the dreadful catastrophe. They are tired of giving. They are tired of waiting."

"What will Atlanta's answer be? Now is the time to give."

500 Are Needed.
"We must have at least 500 workers in this campaign. Atlanta is a big city—the biggest in the southeast—and unless more workers respond to this urgent call, our mission will fail. It is an interest in putting over this campaign in the real Atlanta way, to roll up their sleeves, figuratively speaking, and join in this noble work. Thousands upon thousands of people are slowly starving to death—many of them daily dying through lack of food and proper medical attention."

Both Mr. May and Harold Hirsch, state chairman of the campaign, felt gratified over the financial results of the first 36 hours of the campaign, stating that, considering the fact that at least 300 more workers were needed to swell the total number in the Atlanta drive, the amount thus far raised was highly satisfactory.

Meetings of the workers are being held daily at 11 a. m. at the headquarters, 1117 Peachtree street, and at 7 p. m. at the 1117 Piedmont hotel. Mr. May further stated that any prospective workers in the drive should apply either to A. D. G. Cohen, southern field secretary, or to Al Cray Bogart, local secretary.

WIFE INTERCEPTS CODE LOVE LETTERS AND GETS DIVORCE

White Plains, N. Y., May 3.—Mrs. Rhonda S. Henry, formerly of White Plains and now of Baltimore, today won a separation from her husband, Dr. George W. Henry, formerly psychiatrist and laboratory director of the Bloomingdale Hospital for the Insane. Supreme Court Justice Frank L. Young granted the decree and allowed $150 alimony.

Testimony was given by Mrs. Henry that her husband had become infatuated with Miss Elizabeth Mangum, his assistant in the laboratory. Mrs. Henry said she had letters written in code that had passed between her husband and the young woman.

Dr. William L. Russell, medical director of Bloomingdale, testified that Dr. Henry resigned his position on January 30 and spoke of a contemplated trip with Miss Mangum to the west where he hoped to obtain a divorce.

WHISKY PERMITS REVOKED BY DRY CHIEF IN KENTUCKY

Louisville, May 3.—(AP)—Thirteen whisky permits were revoked today through the office of W. O. Mays, prohibition director of Kentucky and Tennessee. Revocation of the permits followed a six weeks' tour by inspectors through Kentucky and Tennessee when records of physicians and concerns were checked. Thirty-two other cases are pending before A. J. Howe, prohibition agent, appointed by Mr. Mays to act in the cases presented by I. N. Stealy, legal adviser to the prohibition unit.

Among the permits revoked was that of the Economy Drug company, Knoxville, Tenn.

Holders of the revoked permits have 30 days in which to appeal to a board consisting of Mr. Mays, Ben W. Hall, in charge of the permit division, and D. O. Burke, of the enforcement department.

DETROIT BANK, ROBBED OF $9,000 BY THREE BANDITS

Detroit, May 3.—(AP)—One of three armed robbers guarded three customers, another herded four employees into the manager's office and a third scooped up $9,000 at a branch of the People's State bank late today.

The man who seized the money also took all of the revolvers from the tellers' cages.

A large amount of money had been removed from the branch to the main bank shortly before the robbery and the police guard had just gone off duty.

$10,000,000 POWER PLANT AT BLUE RIDGE

Blue Ridge, Ga., May 3.—(AP)—Preliminary work of the $10,000,000 hydroelectric project of the Toccoa Electric Power company has been finished. It is announced incident to the finishing of the first work of the mile-long concrete dam here on the Toccoa river.

This dam will form a lake six miles wide and 12 miles long, according to engineers' reports. The dam itself will be 165 feet high, 900 feet across the base and will graduate in thickness to 300 feet at the top, on which will be placed a section of the Atlanta-Asheville highway.

Twenty thousand hydroelectric horsepower will be developed through the Toccoa dam, it is said, and all power thus produced will be used in the state of Tennessee with the exception of that employed in Blue Ridge and its vicinity.

The development was started in 1916, and temporarily abandoned during the war. Since the war, however, engineers resumed operations on a larger scale than the original specifications, and when completed, the lake will average 75 feet in depth, forming what is claimed to be one of the largest clear water lakes in the south.

TRAFFIC REGULATION PROPOSED IN COUNCIL

Ivy street, between Peachtree and Decatur streets, will be added to the streets on which "U" turns will be permitted in the future, if a recommendation of the traffic committee of council, of which Councilman Harry York is chairman, is approved by Mayor Walter A. Sims.

The proposal was brought to council by the committee. Aldermen Allen Couch, of the fifth, and William B. Hartfield, of the third, were the only members of general council to oppose it.

FALL OF MOVIE THEATER ROOF INJURES SCORE

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., May 3.—(AP)—A score of persons were injured, several seriously, either by falling debris or in the mad rush for safety, when a section of the ceiling of the Savoy theater fell today.

The accident occurred when the theater, one of the largest movie houses in the city, was only partly filled. The section which fell, was 45 feet wide and more than 50 feet long and weighed approximately 11 tons.

Charged electric wires were carried down by the debris and several persons received severe shocks and burns as well as lacerations and bruises. City officials express the opinion the collapse was caused by the vibration of a large electric motor beneath the stage, used to operate the organ bellows.

LONDON POLICE ISSUE WARRANT FOR SAKLATVALA

London, May 3.—(AP)—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Shapurji Saklatvala, communist member of the house of commons, on a charge of making a seditious speech in Hyde Park yesterday, the Westminster Gazette says today.

Saklatvala, who is the only communist member in the house of commons, came into notice in the United States last year when the department

Easy to Gain With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast with Vegetable Iron Builds Up Weight in Three Weeks

This new combination of yeast vitamins and vegetable iron, renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangerous poisons, increases energy and endurance and supplies the system with the vitamins that build up weight.

For years yeast has been known as a rich vitamin food, but not until we perfected "ironized yeast"—which comes in concentrated tablet form, was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron" when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized, becomes just twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast. Ironized Yeast tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. It makes no difference how old you are—or how young you are—how long you have been under weight—or how much under weight you are, "ironized yeast" tablets are positively guaranteed to pick you right up, and add from five to twenty pounds of good, firm flesh in three weeks' time. If they fail get your money back. At $1.00 for a large 60-tablet package, or sent direct from laboratory on receipt of price. Ironized Yeast Co., Desk 200, Atlanta, Ga.—(adv.)

A WORTHY AWARD.
One of the highest honors open to American journalism is the Pulitzer prize for the "most distinguished and meritorious service of any American newspaper" in the previous year.

This award, under the bequest of Joseph Pulitzer, of The New York World, to the Pulitzer School of Journalism at Columbia University, is made upon nomination by the advisory board and confirmed by the trustees.

Georgians will be gratified to learn from a news story in The Constitution this morning that the award for "disinterested and meritorious service" in 1925 has been awarded to Julian Harris, publisher and editor of The Columbus Enquirer-Sun.

Mr. Harris, as a graduate from the news department of The Constitution, needs no introduction to our readers. He is a son of Joel Chandler Harris, the famous author internationally known as "Uncle Remus," who so long contributed to these columns. He inherited the newspaper passion and has pursued it in Atlanta, New York, Paris and Columbus with such devotion to its higher missions as to merit and reach the national distinction now awarded to him.

To what nobler work can an American editor of the present era consecrate his pen and press than in combating racial prejudice and religious intolerance, demanding legal justice instead of lynch law, advocating higher education and contesting every semblance of a union of church with state? These are cardinal principles of American democracy and constitutional government. Mr. Harris, like others, has found that to stand for these things fearlessly is to tread no primrose path, but with French fervor in his blood and Georgia courage in his heart, he has dared to be true to his convictions—to make himself the answer, if need be, to the challenge.

"Where can a man die better Than facing fearful odds For the altar of his fathers And the temples of his gods?"

In the making of his conspicuous and influential newspaper Mr. Harris has had the invaluable aid of his sympathetic and cultured wife, Julia Collier Harris, daughter of a pioneer Atlanta family and one of Georgia's most brilliant and beloved women. She will share with her elect-husband the gratification coming with the distinguished award to The Enquirer-Sun, to whose columns she is a regular contributor, and who, in the campaign which results in this conspicuous service award, rendered constant aid and encouragement to her husband.

The Constitution warmly felicitates them and applauds the honor thus given to one of its many notable newspaper alumni.

A GREAT MAN GONE.
Truly a great man is fallen in the death yesterday of Oscar S. Straus at his home in New York. The news will carry sadness to millions of persons on the five continents. His death was painless and peaceful, in the presence of his family, mercifully given to a faithful servant of God and humanity.

Born in Germany in 1850 he came with his father, a Jewish immigrant, to Philadelphia in 1852, and soon after the family removed to Georgia, making its home in Tallapoosa. There the three brothers, Oscar, Nathan and Isidor, received schooling and entered into trade activities. After the war between the states the Strauses removed to New York City, where the three were enabled by their intelligence and industry to rise to positions of affluence and fame. Their names are inseparable from the commercial, financial, political and philanthropic history of the half century past.

For nearly 40 years Oscar S. Straus has been a diplomatic figure, honored by official commissions from five presidents of both major parties, an independent patriot and a ready participant in national and international enterprises for the peace of the world and the welfare of mankind.

The passing of such a great soul from the arena of American affairs is an unusual loss to the nation and will be mourned without leave from issues of race or creed.

OUR P-T. A. GUESTS.
The concurrent convention in this city of the State and National Parent-Teacher associations is a compliment to Atlanta. It is a high valuation of the spirit and constructive activities of the many parent-teacher associations that function locally.

Coordination of the interests of parents and teachers in the educational field is natural and logical, even if of very modern organization. They are partners in purpose. Their interlocking functions are to constantly improve, educational methods and draw out the intellectual powers of the generation yet under tutelage and discipline. The nation of tomorrow is preparing in the schoolrooms of today. He who would prophesy what manner of people the Americans will be 20 years hence must get his data from those precincts.

Atlanta highly appreciates the presence of the parent-teacher associations within her gates and they will find her hospitable and helpful. No city of the continent is more lavish, within its means, in support of public education. We are proud of our system of people's schools and will welcome all the light and counsel these representative American parents and teachers can give us in our efforts to make our schools more perfect and productive of intelligent citizens.

NEW HEALTH CENTERS.
The attractions in Georgia for health-seekers and seasonal sojourners are being added by two new and major resort developments.

Warm Springs, in Meriwether county, has been taken over by Honorable Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, himself a beneficiary of its balmy airs and healing waters. With his associates he is planning heavy investments in the necessary improvements to make the place a notable tourist and health resort. His faith in the popularity and prosperity of the enterprise talks in the language of determination and dollars. That predicated realization in the fullest measure and all Georgians welcome his advent with admiration and confidence.

Down at Blue Mineral Springs, six miles south of Albany, on the Dixie highway to Florida, Barron G. Collier, the millionaire advertiser magnate, southern-born at Memphis, has become a heavy investor in its improvement. The hotel and clubhouse is costing a million and a quarter dollars, and golf links and other constructions necessary to a de luxe resort are planned for early completion.

These new centers into the field of Georgia enterprises are men of vision, judgment and experience. Their coming will influence others who have capital and far-sighted enterprise to follow them. The expansion of business and wealth in the state is having effect throughout the nation and will be the magnets to attract many thousands of tourists, investors and permanent residents.

It is easy economy to refuse living pensions to disabled veterans who can fight no more.

In opera circles it is difficult to say whether she is a diva or a divorcee.

It is as hard to pass a farm relief bill in congress as to pass a $2 bill in Darktown.

The dries say "Obey!" and the wets say "O—!" something else yet!

Mencken couldn't sell his stuff in Tennessee unless it had a "bottled-in-bond" stamp on it.

In the movie world the bonds of matrimony seem to carry divorce coupons.

Those stray votes only proved what a windy affair is a prohibition debate.

The idea of Mussolini seems to be to get the world in a swing, but where would he stand to swing it?

Why should any country go to war? Are not the automobile killings sufficient?

The department of justice is bothered with Boyles on its Alabama leg.

Also, the spring opera of the birds is about ready to give its initial performance.

Memories of the Past.

I. Dear are memories of the past. How long, how very long they last! Lodged in the heart and in the mind, Both past and present close they bind. In Time's bright mirror clear they show, Life's history of long ago.

And to us tenderly they bring, Voices that speak, and those that sing.

II. Magic things can memories do, Bringing the past again in view. In Youth's garden once more we stroll, Love's rose we pluck, rose of our soul. We roam through woods, sit by field streams, Indulging there in love's sweet dreams, Think of the future's mystic things, Till night floats down on starlit wings.

III. Dream on, O heart! though you are old, Ah, sunsets even show gleams of gold— Dream of a heavenly spiritland, Where on its shore your loved ones stand. The beautiful, the good, the true, Waiting—far for love to see you through. Dream, heart! long as your life shall last, Dream of the forgotten past.

The Pipe Smoker.
(From The Thomasville Times-Enterprise.)

That fellow in England who smoked his pipe four and five minutes without lighting it excites our admiration as well as curiosity. We not only should like to clasp the hand that lit that pipe, but we should like to see the Englishman make a demonstration tour of the United States.

We American pipe smokers have the smoking habit, but the technique of many of us could be improved. It stands smoke nervously and eagerly. That he smokes the bowl and spoils the flavor of the smoke. Few of us have mastered the art of achieving the cool smoke. Moreover, we let the cake get too thick in face of the known fact that constant expansions by heat of the delicious cake ends in the early cracking of the bowl. We have no doubt this English champion has some expert advice to give on the art of caring for the brain as well as the art of smoking. In any event, he should come over for a lecture tour. We do not favor more smoking, but we do advocate better smoking.

IV. The Hustling Ones.
I. The candidates are never slow. Theirs is one long endeavor. "And men may come, and men may go, But they go on forever."

II. They're ever in the race to win "And covering the ground." And finding out they're not of kin To half the country round.

III. They follow you as fast as Fate Till laid upon the shelves, And save, for conscience sake, the state, When they have saved themselves.

Here's the Dalton Citizen man saying, "It is reported that beefsteak is to be made from cotton seed. With the eighteenth amendment effective, if the cotton seed should not become a lost art."

"Henry Ford knows just exactly how to enforce prohibition, and tells just how it can be done. He knew how to get the boys out of the trenches that time by Christmas, and did everything about it except to get them out."

Many fortunes have been and are now being wrecked through farm operations during past six years. We are informed 98 per cent farm lands now under mortgage, foreclosures and bankruptcies are being continually enacted.

The one hope is for government to take the cue in some way and lead farmers into successful cooperative marketing. It is not probable that they can do this within themselves. Money now expended by the government in teaching the farmers how to produce more, would bring great relief used in directing them to a sane and safe system in marketing their crops.

We repeat Mr. Holleman's question in substance, "are our representatives in congress unaware of agricultural chaos existing in their own state?"

Athens, Ga., May 3.—(AP)—Construction of a new building on the campus of the University of Georgia to house the Henry Grady School of Journalism and the School of Commerce will begin in September, according to a decision reached by the board of trustees in September, a special fund of the university at a recent meeting in Atlanta.

The board of trustees of the war memorial fund will meet with the principal committee of the university trustees in Athens at an early date to determine the location of the new building, it is announced.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

New York, May 3.—"Gentlemen requires housekeeper. Must be young and cheerful. No children. Within easy reach of shopping district." This might look like a "pleasant situation" but it's nothing but a decoy. One of the many that appear from time to time in the want column ads of the New York papers.

Pleasant situations at good salaries are nothing but traps very often to attract the pretty unsuspecting country lass, one of the chiefs of the police morality department tells me.

The police scan the advertisements perhaps more carefully than many a maid out of a job and they have their operatives who call at the place where employment is offered.

The particular advertisement quoted above was one which attracted the attention of the sleuths a couple of weeks ago. They dispatched a pretty police woman to the address and she was met at the door by a slowly dossed elderly man. He explained that he was a "lonely widower." His apartment was well-furnished and he told the bogus maid that he had two automobiles.

Perhaps it was the insistence on cheerfulness and youthfulness that attracted the attention of the cop and then the wages rather than the "pleasant situation" for another matter for suspicion. Over the telephone he offered $1,000 a year with board and room.

Down at the police station he waited. "What did she expect for $1,000 anyway?" (Copyright, 1926, by The United News.)

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

Shopping Abroad.

There is no way of getting to know a people better than by dealing daily with its shopkeepers. Anatole France recognized this long ago and enriched literature with his findings in the market places. In most cities of Italy, France and Spain there are two shopping districts—the native district and the foreigner's district. The goods in the two districts vary in nothing but price. Much the same way with the native district, the foreigner's district specializes in a certain variety that which the native sons smile indulgently at. They bring their shoppers in a questioning way. "Montmartre, for instance, is no longer typical French or even Bohemian. It is a polyglot of the gradation of a once delightful neighborhood, who has taken place there. In the matter of wrapping parcels the continentals have a lot to learn from America. Wrapping paper is unusual. Paper bags are unknown. A few of the larger shops give one a small thing brown stuff, usually half an inch long, more often than not buns, cotton reels, or brussels sprouts spill from every side. But generally they are through the window with leaves of bread, melons, or groceries unhampered by brown paper garments. A large lump of ice may be taken home after the shopper has ransacked for an old illustrated weekly.

Radio Invention.

Who was the "inventor" of radio? The Soviet government claims the honor for a Russian, Professor Alexander Stepanovich Popov, and has adopted a characteristic method of telling the world about it. A new Russian postage stamp has been issued. It depicts Popov, and has above an excellent likeness appear the words, "Inventor of Radio—Popov." The language of this invention is, however, not the Russian. The facts appear to be that Professor Popov—admittedly one of the greatest of the Southern Hemisphere—transmitted wireless signals over a distance of 40 miles in 1895, the year before Marconi took out his first patent for the invention. But Brantly and Sir Oliver Lodge had been experimenting for some time along the same lines and the latter gave demonstrations in 1894 in which

HEALTH TALKS

BY WM. BRADY, M. D.

WHEN THE THYROID BULKS.

Although there is now no question that the essential cause of the simple goiter so prevalent among school children, particularly in certain inland regions, is a deficiency of iodine in food, water or medicine, some physicians believe that focal infection may be a contributing factor in many cases. That is, they think the frequent occurrence of infected tonsils, infected teeth, chronic middle ear infection (running ear) and neglected chronic sinus infection in children who have goiter more than coincidence.

It is true that the thyroid gland has something to do with the process of immunity, or as the layman usually hears it called, "resistance" to infectious disease. It is responsible to think that prolonged infection, that is, the presence of a septic focus in the tonsils, a nasal sinus, the ear cavity, untreated for many months or years, places a heavy strain on the thyroid function and ultimately exhausts the gland. In order to comprehend how this happens one must first understand that the hormone of internal secretion of the thyroid gland controls the rate of combustion, oxidation or metabolism in the body, much as the ignition spark controls the turning of the internal combustion engine. Of course the toxins or poisonous products of disease germs in the thyroid must be destroyed by combustion or oxidation.

In the young, the thyroid gland compensates for such exhaustion by increasing in size, so that more gland or secreting tissue may help maintain the oxidation process. When such enlargement occurs we call the condition goiter. In the more mature, a prolonged strain on the thyroid function enlarges the gland, but more frequently brings about the general condition of the body which we call hypothyroidism. I am not better qualified to speak about this than the average physician, but I believe that iodine shortage is the essential cause of hypothyroidism in adults, just as it is the essential cause of simple goiter in school children, and that the contributing factors are practically the same in both conditions.

I can cite no definite "authority" for my belief, but I just suspect that before many years we are going to have a great international scandal, and that the scandal will be the iodine shortage in the United States. I am not a physician, but I believe that iodine shortage is the essential cause of hypothyroidism in adults, just as it is the essential cause of simple goiter in school children, and that the contributing factors are practically the same in both conditions.

Collapse of Stock Market Not Forecast of General Reaction, Financiers De- clare.

Pinehurst, N. C., May 2.—(AP)—Satisfactory readjustment for business without a depression, with money and credit conditions favorable, is the consensus of views expressed by officers and members of the American Bankers' association gathering here for the annual spring meeting of the organization's executive council. Collapse of the stock market has depressed sentiment, according to the bankers, but is not believed to forecast a general reaction in industry and trade.

RECIPE TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

You Can Make a Better Gray Hair
Remedy Than You Can Buy.

Gray, streaked or faded hair is not only unbecoming, but unnecessary. Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Borax Compound and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

house of commons and to the through jamming parliament square outside the house of commons, a settlement for which everyone concerned had been hoping.

But when Cook emerged from a brief conference with the premier and Thomas, he announced:

"The strike is on."

Thomas, testily straining from his eyes, came out to confirm his associate's announcement.

"We failed. The strike must occur," he said.

Not all the 5,000,000 workers involved in the general strike order are to quit at once.

"There will be total paralysis by stages," Cook informed the United News. "Railways, shipping and newspapers will cease immediately."

"All the other services will cease as we require them."

Surging Crowds Everywhere.

While the drama surrounding the final negotiations was proceeding inside the house of commons, the crowd outside had been surging back and forth, asking questions and exchanging rumors. Similar scenes took place throughout London, for the city had been practically without newspapers since noon Monday.

Many did not wait for the word that the strike was on, but drifted homeward during the course of the evening, moving in groups, laughing and joking, seeming not to care whether they went to work Tuesday or not.

In the suburbs, and in the great slums of London, the saloons and eating houses were full until late hour, everyone excitedly discussing the chances of settlement.

Each according to his lights, the man in the street began to think out the strike situation for himself. Usually he is content to let British capital and labor fight out their battles by themselves. But this was Great Britain's first general strike, affecting every home.

Britain to Function.

If there was one unanimous sentiment, it was that of confidence that Britain would function throughout the strike.

Recruiting offices throughout the United Kingdom were swamped with applicants after the announcement of the failure of the negotiations in the house of commons had been broadcast.

Rival preparations of the government and the workers continued throughout the night—unlike dispatches being flashed by telegraph and telephone to every corner of the country, giving orders to the various district leaders regarding such things as collecting milk or maintaining order.

Everywhere throughout the country soldiers moved mysteriously and unobtrusively.

At Hyde Park and at thousands of other points motor trucks by the hundred, the score and the half dozen were assembled and tuned up ready to transport the morning's milk and food.

The railway companies contributed secret preparations to run as many trains as possible with volunteers.

Railway Statement.

The Railway Companies association issued a statement, as follows:

"Notice is hereby given that during the general strike the railways will be unable to accept and convey passengers, merchandise and livestock in the usual course, except with the understanding that the companies are not liable for delays, damage or misdelivery."

The underground railway companies asked for the names of an administrative staff willing to volunteer for emergency work.

By 10 p. m. Monday 6,000 men and women had enrolled in the foreign office quadrangle, as chauffeurs, as well as for jobs as workmen.

Nor was all organized labor in favor of the general strike. At Northampton, for instance, the slave operatives were strongly antagonistic to the walkout, inasmuch as their own industry has been uninterrupted and undisturbed for 27 years.

The general public was heartened that the Trades Union congress, as announced by A. J. Cook, had decided not to bring about immediate cessation of work in all industries under fire control, but to start with the railways, shipping and newspapers and increase the pressure gradually until complete paralysis was effected. This seemed to leave a breathing spell for a portion of the British public before the increasing pressure of the strike choked off all economic life.

Effort at Settlement.

Up to the very last moment before the fateful midnight hour which was to see England plunged into a devastating general strike skin to skin war, Premier Stanley Baldwin, strong man of the government, and J. H. Thomas, British labor leader, conferred in an effort to save the nation from the catastrophe neither desired.

When all negotiations had failed, and more radical union leaders declared the general strike inevitable, there came a miraculous change of temper in the house of commons—a change toward peace.

With but two hours remaining, new hope was created, and the house seemed to have struggled throughout the day by about a settlement, cheered loudly as Premier Baldwin and J. H. Thomas walked out to an anteroom.

Parley Resumed.

Shortly thereafter members of the general council of the trades union congress, which ordered the general strike in sympathy with the miners, who were locked out May 1, resumed a conference with cabinet members and the premier.

Baldwin's resumption of negotiations with Thomas followed a dramatic incident in the speech of Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer.

"The door of negotiations will be open always, even if the strike comes," said Churchill. "The trades union need only to withdraw notices for a general strike and negotiations can reopen immediately."

At this latter statement Thomas rose reluctantly from his seat, and asked if Churchill believed arrangements could be made to suspend both the lockout notices of the mine owners and the strike call of the unions.

"I don't expect an immediate answer," said the government, but replied later, Thomas concluded, whereupon the premier motioned to him and they left the chamber.

Signs of Catastrophe.

London and every section of England began to see visible signs of the impending catastrophe early Monday.

From Hyde Park, where milk carts were stacked in huge piles, and motor lorries were lined up with military precision, to the mining centers where troops arrived to guard against outbreaks, the atmosphere was surcharged with a wartime tenseness.

King George began a motor trip back to Buckingham palace and the entire court was ordered transferred from Windsor castle which has been the vacation residence of the king and queen.

Early afternoon saw the number of London newspapers reduced to one, as one mechanical staff after another deserted their posts in the leading publishing houses. The Evening Star, sole surviving publication, was sold out quickly, and the few newspapers to be seen on the streets had only books on birth control and other propaganda subjects to sell.

Press Conference.

A press conference was held at noon in the admiralty office, under the chairmanship of J. C. C. Davidson, parliamentary secretary of the admiralty. Davidson discussed with newspaper owners the possibility of publication of one paper under government license. The government announced that would broadcast reports and announcements relating to the strike situation. Davidson urged upon all publishers able to print papers that they stress the need for strictest economy in use of food and fuel. Reduction of telephone and cable messages was essential, he said. The post office department arranged to accept no parcels for delivery after midnight and letters and packets exceeding eight ounces in weight would be barred from the mails, it was stated.

All army leaves have been cancelled. A detachment of royal naval reserves is guarding the Lord Mayor's residence.

Two battalions of infantry arrived at Liverpool from Plymouth aboard the troopship Neerulla under sealed orders. Every regiment in England has been ordered to be prepared to move within two hours after receipt of instructions. All troops in the country are virtually "standing by" awaiting orders.

Strikers Make Attack.

The first disorders of the countryside general strike took place in Fleet street, the home of London's newspapers.

A gang of forty strikers rushed the doors of the office of The Daily Telegraph shortly after midnight, the hour when the walkout order became effective. They were driven away by three guards and chased down the street by police.

The raid apparently was unorganized, for the strikers offered but little resistance when the guards attacked them, contenting themselves with shouting threats and attempting to sing the "Red Flag."

Strike Is Announced.

It was five minutes past eleven when Cook and Thomas made their announcement that the strike was on, and the news came with stunning force to members of commons who were waiting in a smoke room and pacing the corridors.

For hours, everyone had "known" that a settlement was imminent. Sir Alfred Mond, the industrialist, had said so, and Winston Churchill had been cheerfully optimistic.

Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, was a stooped and broken man as he emerged from the committee room and headed for the crowded smoke room.

Immediately he was surrounded by a clamorous throng.

"What's the news?" they demanded. Thomas, looking weary and despair, the workers' leader answered: "The strike is on. I am broken."

Rush for Telephones.

But the mob had left him, rushing and elbowing their way to telephones to inform the world.

Meanwhile, outside parliament, the crowd had become so thick that street traffic was seriously impeded. These persons were not aware of what had taken place until after 11:30 p. m.

They knew the house was not in session, for the customary beacon light did not show above "Big Ben," the clock on the tower. But they did not see anyone emerge from the various exits of the house of commons, for the members after telephoning, had returned to discuss the situation informally.

Buses and trams in the neighborhood were halted by the throng, and everyone stood up, craning necks to see what was going on.

The crowd first learned what happened from Herbert Smith, the brawny labor leader with a Yorkshire brogue, who said wearily and dispiritedly as he left the house of commons:

"It's on. I'm nothing to say except that I'm going to bed."

Around the houses of parliament, nearby to the recruiting station in the foreign office courtyard, amazing scenes of quiet another character were taking place.

Here the crowd, now composed entirely of strikers, stood gazing up at the slowly rising hands of "Big Ben," in the clock tower, awaiting the stroke of midnight.

When the famous old timepiece began to chime the hour a tremendous cheer went up that could be heard throughout the city.

Five thousand workers rushed into the road and formed a procession. Around and around Parliament square they marched, and then started down Whitehall, past the darkened government buildings, singing the "Red Flag."

When the strikers passed the cathedral, the monument to the war dead, they ceased their song and silently raised their caps. Then the parade reached Trafalgar square, and the singing broke out again.

Planning for Battle.

While the aimless celebrators were marching, the heads of the trades union congress were planning.

A proclamation was issued by the labor leaders shortly after midnight from the drowsy precincts of Eccleston square.

"Responsibility for the national crisis rests with the government," it read. "With the people of England, the trades unions have no quarrel. On the contrary, the unions are fighting to maintain the standard of life for the great mass of the people."

"The trades unions did not enter the fight without counting the cost. They are assured all trades unionists in the country will stand loyally by the instructions of their leaders, who have issued orders that violence and disorder must everywhere be avoided, no matter what the excitement."

"Let no one be disturbed by rumors or driven by panic to betray our cause. Stand firm, and we win."

There were practically no newsmen to print the proclamation.

The government planned to turn the "mystery" old "Official Gazette" into a daily newspaper, and the strikers themselves barred all others.

The surging crowds in the streets were pelted with handbills bearing the proclamation, which they read and waved as they marched along.

Armored cars and trucks manned by crack Cold Stream guards from the central London barracks beside St. James' park sifted through the traffic and the crowds of strikers all night, bound for various destinations in the outskirts of London.

Contingents of soldiers were dispatched throughout the country for guard duty. Other soldiers went into camp at Alder, which is really London's army camp, although 30 miles away, and were taken to secret destinations in motor buses.

The strikers jeered the soldiers as they passed, but except where someone was intoxicated, most of the controversy was good natured.

Bobby Jones and Partner Strb Facing Tough Battle Here May 24

Win by Score of 1 Up In Washington Match

Jones, Gunn and Other Members of Atlanta Party To Assemble With Other Walker Cup Players in N. Y. Today.

Washington, May 3.—Bobby Jones, national amateur golf champion, and Tommy Armour, new Congressional club professional, defeated Leo Diegel, of New York, and Fred McLeod, of Columbia, one up at the end of a 36-hole match at the Congressional Country club Monday afternoon.

The morning contest closed with Jones and Armour leading one up, and all during the afternoon match, they fought to hold that lead. Diegel, who holds the course record with a 68 against a par of 74, shot a 78 in the afternoon round. The scores of the others were: McLeod, 71; Armour, 77, and Jones, 77.

ATLANTANS ARRIVE IN NEW YORK TODAY.

New York, May 3.—With the arrival here Tuesday morning of Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, the national amateur golf champion for the last two years and former open champion, the eight amateurs who will make up the American attack at four British golf titles will be complete. Jones spent Monday in Washington playing a four-ball match in which he was paired with Tommy Armour against Leo Diegel and Fred McLeod, professionals.

Members of the American team now in New York, ready to sail Tuesday at midnight aboard the Cunard liner Aquitania, include the youthful Watts Gunn, also of Atlanta, who played the final amateur title round last fall with Jones; Francis Ouimet, former open and amateur champion; Jess Guilford, former amateur champion; Roland MacKenzie, of Washington; Jesse Sweetser, of Boston; Robert A. Gardner, of Chicago, former national champion and now captain of the American team.

George Von Elm, of San Francisco, was expected to arrive Monday night. The golfers will be guests Tuesday night at a dinner to be given in their honor by the United States Golf association and at midnight they will depart for the Aquitania.

Some concern is felt among officials of the U. S. Golf association over the British strike, which might tie up transportation facilities in England and delay the trip back home. Jones, Gunn, Ouimet, MacKenzie and possibly one or two others will stay for the British open tournament, starting June 21, but part of the team hope to return immediately after the amateur.

The team expects to land at Southampton May 10, and engage in exhibition matches until May 17, when the annual Gold Cup tournament will be held at Sandwich, a course near London.

The players will be accompanied on their invasion by a number of golf enthusiasts and officials of the United States Golf association.

LOUIS DISBROW REFUSES TO RACE AGAINST LACOSTA

FAMOUS DRIVER SAYS RACING IS MEN'S GAME

Louis Disbrow, 50-year-old, veteran who has run in more auto races than any driver alive, is anxious to battle in the speed contests scheduled for May 15 at Lakewood track, but he refuses to start unless officials cancel the entry of Mlle. Joan LaCosta, champion girl driver who recently smashed all feminine speed marks with a pace of 145.14 miles per hour.

Disbrow's ultimatum was handed to track officials in the form of a letter which accompanied his entry, sent to Oscar Miller, secretary of the Southeastern Fair association, owners of Lakewood Park and track.

"Women are no business on a race track—it's a man's game," the embittered veteran wrote.

"And besides, I've seen about all the women drivers who have ever amounted to much and I've never yet seen one who could actually handle a machine the way it ought to be handled. The wheel after the wheel, the fact that records disclose only three men who have ever driven faster than Mlle. LaCosta—and Disbrow is no exception."

"It takes bone and muscle to handle a machine when it's hitting the terrific pace necessary on the straightaways of a mile dirt track," he continued, "especially if she is going after world records on the track."

Gugliemini, Eddleman Will Arrive Tonight; Ready for Big Scraps

Gugliemini Meets Sullivan and Eddleman Clashes With Avera on Thursday Card; Goldsmith Is Named As Judge.

Nomination of Jimmy Goldsmith, former secretary of the Atlanta boxing commission, to act as one of the judges in the 10-round bout between Lou Gugliemini and Hollis Sullivan next Thursday, was made Monday by the boxing commission following announcement of the inability of Jake Abel to serve.

Abel notified the commission that a previous appointment would keep him away from the fight. Goldsmith is an experienced judge of boxing and will act with Ed Danforth, Atlanta sports writer, and Referee Eddie Hanlon in reaching a decision in the return match between the two fast-stopping featherweights.

Gugliemini and his camp followers were vociferously dissatisfied with the decision in favor of Sullivan in the first Atlanta meeting between the two boys in March and asked for judges to be appointed this time. The commission agreed just to keep peace in the family.

Gugliemini and Dave Eddleman, a hard-hitting welterweight who meets Larry Avera Thursday, will arrive in Atlanta Tuesday night or Wednesday morning by way of a train. Eddleman, who defeated Johnny Clinton, of New York, Friday night in Asheville, is in the field with this manager promises that Avera will be made to step mightily fast to get anything better than a measured count of ten.

The Avera fight is a young native of North Carolina who has been making amazing progress in the game, and gave Larry the battle of his life two weeks ago.

With two such sparkling attractions carried as the main events, the show, which will be staged for the benefit of the disabled American veterans, looks as the most spirited fistic event of the indoor season. Tickets were placed on sale Monday at the Piedmont Hotel and Chesapeake Place. Bulls' Eye matches, which expects a season indoor record to be set at the gate.

The added attraction brings together Irvin, Larry Corbett, Eddleman, N. C., and Kid Karis, the soldier slayer, in eight rounds. These boys have a murderous style and both have been in the field with this winner. A four-round opener also is on the books, filling out a card of 32 scheduled rounds.

OSCAR S. STRAUS TAKEN BY DEATH

New York, May 3.—(AP)—Death today ended the long career of Oscar S. Straus, who, coming to America at the age of four with his parents, Jewish immigrants from Bavaria, rose to prominence as a merchant, financier, philanthropist, diplomat and ever willing servant of the public.

He was 76 years old and for two years had been troubled with heart attacks. He returned two weeks ago to his Fifth avenue home from a winter in Florida. Suddenly and without pain death took him as he was enjoying his breakfast in apparently no worse health than had been his for several days. His wife and Roger William Straus, his son, were with him at the end. Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at Temple Beth-El on Fifth avenue, and burial will be in Beth-El cemetery on Long Island.

His public life began in 1887 when he was appointed minister to Turkey by President Cleveland. As secretary of commerce and labor under President Roosevelt, he was the first member of the Jewish race to become a cabinet member. In 1912 he was progressive candidate for governor of New York.

Five presidents of both political parties honored him and the latter quarter century of his life was given to public service and philanthropy.

His domestic political duties were varied for 15 years by attendance at The Hague, where he served six three-year terms, beginning in 1902.

His other public duties included membership on the advisory board of the commission for relief in Belgium, which Herbert Hoover was chairman.

He also was a founder of the National Civic Federation and the author of a number of books on economics.

Mr. Straus began his career as a lawyer in 1873 but forsook this in 1881 to join a pottery and glassware importing house under the firm name of L. Straus and Sons.

This corporation later became interested in department stores and Mr. Straus became an important factor in this field before he retired in 1907.

He gave generously to many charities.

Mr. Straus returned two weeks ago from Florida where he had spent the winter for his health. His end was entirely peaceful and his wife and son were with him when he died.

"He was an old man," relatives said, "and his life just came to an end."

It was said that funeral services would probably be held Wednesday afternoon from Temple Beth-El at 4 East 76th street.

SPENT YOUTH AT TALBOTTON.
Columbus, Ga., May 3.—(AP)—Oscar S. Straus, who died at his home in New York city today, spent his boyhood in Talbot county, Georgia, and for a time was engaged in business with his brother, Nathan Straus, in Columbus. He is a cousin of Mrs. M. J. Kaufman, of Columbus.

Mr. Straus was a son of Lazarus Straus, an agriculturalist who fled Germany in 1838 because of the part he had taken in a revolution in 1846.

Settling in Philadelphia for a short time, Lazarus Straus took his family to Talbotton, Ga., where his son attended Hollingsworth institute. Later they moved to New York.

P. T. A. Speaker Stresses Needs Of Boys and Girls

An appeal for more attention to the needs of the 20,000,000 American farmer girls and boys was made to the national convention of the parents and teachers at a luncheon at the Henry Grady hotel Monday afternoon by Stewart F. Gelders, speaking for the Southeastern Fair association, of which he is press representative.

"We cannot hope ever to put a complete stop to the steady drift from country to city and as the proportion of farmers to city dwellers becomes progressively smaller, our only salvation is to have better farmers," the speaker asserted.

"The Southeastern Fair association, with its boys' fair school each year to which it brings at its own expense the two boys from each county who prove in competition to be the most promising material for leadership, and with its cooperation in many lines with the State College of Agriculture and other educational interests, has for many years been doing a pioneer work in advancing the cause of education among farmer boys and girls of Georgia," he continued.

"Through these contacts it has been in peculiar position to sense the need for strong parent-teacher organizations in all the rural communities throughout the state. Improvement can come only through the unselfish service of the state and national parent-teachers in establishing and sympathetically nursing into effective strength such unions as have blessed the schools and the children of Atlanta and other cities."

The speaker extended on behalf of the fair association an invitation to all delegates to inspect the fair plant, the most expensive and complete in the south, and to be guests of the association at all attractions of the amusement park, which it operates. Guest cards to the park were distributed among all the delegates.

Receiver Named For Vanderbilt California Paper

Los Angeles, May 4.—(AP)—Meredith C. Snyder, former mayor of Los Angeles, late today was named receiver for The Illustrated Daily News, Los Angeles tabloid newspaper.

Petition for receiver was filed in federal court earlier in the day by Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., the holding company for the three tabloids established in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Miami by Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.

The Daily News Publishing company filed an answer to the petition in which it joined in asking the appointment of a receiver. Bonds for the receiver were placed at $100,000.

VANDERBILT SUSPENDS SAN FRANCISCO PAPER.
San Francisco, Cal., May 3.—(AP)—An order suspending the daily illustrated Herald, the Vanderbilt Tabloid newspaper, here, was received today from the headquarters of the Vanderbilt organization in Los Angeles.

The last edition will appear tomorrow morning, being issued by the employees on their own responsibility.

The staff of the paper, in a meeting with the executives, said that they would take the organization over for the final issue in the "dying hope" that some possible turn of affairs overnight would permit a continuation of publication. It was explained, however, that there was an unpaid payroll of $11,000 which would be met out of existing advertising accounts, that the paper's stock was exhausted, and that the paper's credit would not permit of its being conducted further.

The staff was advised that the suspension order was effective "at once" but remained in the shop and went to work on tomorrow's edition.

LAD'S TOY WAGON WRECKED, SENDS HIM TO HOSPITAL

Paul Hammon, 9 years old, of 47 Pearl street, was treated at Grady hospital Monday afternoon for a badly cut lip and lacerations about the knee as result of a collision near his home between his toy express wagon and an automobile, according to Grady hospital records.

The injured youth was allowed to return home after his injuries had been treated. The name of the driver of the automobile which collided with the youth's express wagon was not learned at Grady hospital and no report had been filed at police station.

Miami Sheriff Here.
Henry H. King, formerly connected with the Atlanta police department and present deputy sheriff at Miami, Fla., is in the city to take back a prisoner to Florida. Mr. King arrived in Atlanta Friday and will leave the city without his prisoner, since the matter has been settled here. He has been in Florida for more than a year.

INDIANA VOTES IN PRIMARY TODAY

Indianapolis, Ind., May 3.—(AP)—Indiana's favorite sport—politics—enters the tournaments tomorrow when democrats and republicans select party champions at a primary election. Nominees for two places in the United States senate, 13 congressional seats, house and senate of the state assembly and minor county and precinct offices will be chosen.

The written word today superceded oratory as the rival senatorial camps issued statements indicating confidence in victory. Prediction of fair weather for tomorrow renewed speculation on voting in rural regions.

Farmer, because of the late spring, are taking advantage of every fair day and may not abandon their furrows even to vote.

Senator James E. Watson, candidate for the republican long term nomination from Washington thanked his workers but refrained from prognosticating. His manager, John Motto, of Warsaw, however, said "if there are 350,000 republican votes cast Senator Watson's majority will be 180,000."

Clarie Adams, of Indianapolis, opponent of Watson, in predicting his nomination, said the Watson campaign "began in desperation and ended in a panic." He said his nomination would be a "referendum vote in favor of the farmer."

Senator Arthur R. Robinson, seeking the short term republican nomination in a final statement set forth some of the principles for which he stands, farm legislation is imperative, he said.

The candidates for senatorial honors are:

Long term, republican: James E. Watson, Rushville; Clarie Adams, Indianapolis. Democratic: L. Ert Black, Albert Stump, L. William Curry, all of Indianapolis. William A. Cullip, of Vincennes; George Rauch, of Marion, and John E. Frederick, of Kokomo.

Short term, republican: Arthur R. Robinson, of Indianapolis; Oswald Ryan, of Anderson, and A. G. Graham, of South Bend. Democrats: Evans Woolen, Indianapolis.

A Hint For The Young Jelly Maker

By Elizabeth Palmer

Even your mother-in-law can't make better jam or jelly than you can make by the new Certo method.

For with Certo no practice is required to pick the right fruit at just the right stage of ripeness. And no experienced judgment is called for to say just when your faith has been "boiled down" enough.

Any fine, ripe fruit you like will tell perfectly with Certo. You do not have to boil Certo, just bring your fruit and sugar to a boil, add Certo, let it boil hard for a couple of minutes, and it's done.

Your jams and jellies will look prettier and taste better, because the short boil with Certo saves the bright color and delicate flavor of your fresh fruit. It also saves the juice which used to boil away, so that you get half again more jam or jelly from your fruit.

Your grocer has Certo. A book of simple, tested recipes for all sorts of delicious jams and jellies, comes with each bottle.—(adv.)

Bats Club Gives Lovely Dance At Druid Hills

Initiating the week of social events for the younger set was the lovely dance at which the Bats, exclusive social club of Emory university, entertained Monday evening at the Druid Hills Golf club.

The novel affair was in the nature of a "Lido Beach" party, the handsome ballroom of the club being decorated to represent this gay resort. Ribbons of many colors which were suspended from the ceiling, doors, windows and chandeliers, added an air of festivity. The guests assembled wearing attractive beach attire with the brightly-colored Lido pajamas, made famous by the resort, much in evidence.

Supper was served at small tables which were topped by gaily-striped umbrellas, similar to those used on the beach.

Several hundred members of the college set attended the dance which was one of the most original and novel affairs of the spring season.

The Bats is the oldest and one of the most exclusive social clubs on the Emory campus. It enjoys a large amount of prestige and its active membership is limited to 25 men, elected from the four colleges of the university. The officers are Joel Hunter, Jr., president; Truman Allen, vice president; and Doug Kendrick, secretary and treasurer.

Keeping Your Schoolgirl Complexion

By IRENE CASTLE

Copyrighted 1934 by P. O. Beauty Features

The Folly

Of using just "any good soap" on your face

The kind beauty experts use themselves and how used

A SOAP may be good for any number of things, yet not be at all suited to the skin. The only kind of soap to use on your face is a soap made basically for that purpose. A good complexion is too precious for experiment.

Before Palmolive came, women were told, "use no soap on your faces." All soaps then were judged too harsh.

Then came this famous beauty creation. A soap made by experts in beauty of rare cosmetic oils—and made solely for one purpose: to safeguard the complexion. A soap that changed the beauty methods of the world.

Leading skin authorities urge it. It has brought natural skin loveliness to more women than any other method known. In your own interest, use it according to the following rule for one week. Note the improvement your complexion shows:

Nature's rule to "Keep That Schoolgirl Complexion"

Wash your face gently with Palmolive Soap, massaging it softly into the skin. Rinse thoroughly, first with warm water, then with cold. If your skin is inclined to be dry, apply a touch of good cold cream—that is all.

Do this regularly, and particularly in the evening. Use powder and rouge, if you wish. But never leave them on over night. They clog the pores, often enlarge them. Blackheads and disfigurements often follow. They must be washed away. Just do this and keep your skin soft and lovely—wrinkles will be less a problem as the years advance.

Get Real Palmolive

Do not use ordinary soaps in the treatment given above. Do not think any green soap, or represented as of palm and olive oils, is the same as Palmolive.

It costs but 10c the cake!—so little that millions let it do for their bodies what it does for their faces. Obtain Palmolive today. Then note what an amazing difference one week makes. The Palmolive Company (Del. Corp.), Chicago, Illinois.

COOLIDGE AND KING PLAN TO CONVERSE ACROSS ATLANTIC

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

New York, May 3.—A radio telephone conversation across the Atlantic between President Coolidge and King George of England is being arranged here. The suggestion was made originally to the Radio Corporation of America and the American Telephone and Telegraph company by the North American Newspaper Alliance.

As was the case when Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric company, and David Sarnoff, vice president of the Radio Corporation, talked with General Owen D. Young, chairman of the board in London, no unusual scientific apparatus will be in evidence. The heads of the two nations, one in the white house at Washington and the other in Buckingham palace at London, will need simply to pick up the customary telephone instrument and begin the conversation.

The conversation was over a greater space than any held before. Because of the known reticence of the two rulers, it was suggested it also may be one of the briefest.

Western Union Plans For Message Deluge On "Mother's Day"

In order to speedily deliver the deluge of "Mother's Day" messages Sunday, special preparations have been made by local officials of the Western Union Telegraph company. A host of suggested messages, appropriate for the occasion, has been provided as well as special blanks. As usual the messages will be delivered quickly. The day was first observed in 1910 and since that time its significance has spread to such an extent it is observed in every American state.

BATCHELOR GRANTED SIXTY-DAY RESPITE

J. D. Batchelor, sentenced to die in the electric chair on May 7 for the murder of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Fannie Anderson, in Jones county last April, was granted a 60-day respite Monday by Governor Walker. The respite was in the form of a telegram sent to the sheriff at Gray, Ga., stating that a sixty-day respite had been granted the condemned man, pending hearing before the prison commission of a petition for recommendation to clemency.

Attorney Joseph E. Pottle, of Milledgeville, appeared before the governor and later before the prison commission, at which meeting the first Monday in June was set for that body's review of the petition.

Action of the governor followed the preparation of a petition for executive clemency by attorneys for Batchelor. The petition was said to have borne the names of eleven of the trial jurors.

Batchelor, formerly of Atlanta and Macon, claimed that he shot his mother-in-law accidentally during a scuffle with his wife over a gun with which he intended killing himself.

Many prominent hardware men from eastern and middle-western states, including executives of large hardware manufacturing plants, will attend the convention.

Welcome addresses will be delivered at the opening session tonight by Mayor Walter A. Sims and Dr. W. W. Mendenhall, of All Saints Episcopal church. A short business session will be held following the addresses.

The convention will open at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning and a round-table discussion will be held on, "Do We

Several social functions will be held for the delegates and wives before the convention closes Friday. Fred B. Mitchell, secretary and treasurer of the American Hardware Manufacturers' association, is in charge of his group and John Donnan, secretary and treasurer of the Southern Hardware Jobbers' association, is in charge of meetings of the jobbers.

George D. Kirkham, of Chicago, formerly sales agent of American Steel & Wire company, Memphis, Tenn., is visiting old friends while attending the convention. Mr. Kirkham retired from active service January 1, 1926, after serving 40 years in the steel business. He is one of the old members of the Old Guard and stopped over to attend the meeting and dinner of the Old Guard at the Capital City club Monday night.

Mr. Kirkham has been spending the winter at the Gulf Hills Golf and Country club near Biloxi, Miss. The beautiful Gulf Hills has become the winter playground of golfers from Chicago and the northwest. Mr. Kirkham has become quite a fisherman also.

He is planning to leave Atlanta for Savannah to take a steamer for New York city, planning to spend the summer on the coast of Maine.

Milton C. Work Will Conduct Bridge Lectures

Milton C. Work, who stands pre-eminent as lecturer, teacher, player and author, will offer a solution to many bridge players' problems at the lecture to be given Monday afternoon and evening, May 10, in the ballroom of the Biltmore hotel, sponsored by the Fine Arts club, the lectures to cost $5 for both or $3 for a single lecture.

Mrs. Robert C. Alston and Mrs. Marion Martin are co-chairmen on general arrangements and Mrs. Nash Broyles and Miss Willie Calhoun will be in charge of the sale of Work's book on bridge.

This will be a valuable opportunity for Atlantans to hear an expert authority on bridge, and tickets are on sale at the Biltmore and the Capital City club.

Mr. Work declares that in the modern game of bridge there is no excuse for any player being ignorant of the ever-present means of showing what is in his hands to his partner. He wrote his first book, "What of Today," followed by "Auction of Today," both books being marvellous sellers, and after the lectures at the Biltmore he will hold an open forum to answer puzzling questions.

These two lectures will be illustrated. There will be decks of cards at each table and players will sort them into suits. Mr. Work will call out different combinations to be put on the table so that a player will have a bridge hand of 13 cards before him. Discussion of hands, explanations of various leads and plays will show the player how to make the maximum out of the hand. He will take up all types of finessing situations, certain defensive plays, the profitable business pass, the great utility of the four-card suit bids and minimum bids.

HOW THE PILGRIM MOTHER

Kept Her Family in Good Health

A statue to the Pilgrim Mother was recently unveiled at Plymouth Rock, Mass. Through her we honor every pioneer woman who endured privation and hardships that a nation might live. She shoulder to shoulder with her husband built a home in the wilderness and reared her sturdy sons and daughters. She cooked and sewed. She spun and wove for her family. When they were ill, she brewed remedies from roots and herbs—such roots and herbs as are now used in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A Massachusetts woman writes: "I was all run-down, with no ambition. I was tired all the time. Sometimes I would be in bed two or three days at a time, and the doctor would have to give me something to quiet me. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have had wonderful results from it. I felt better after taking the second bottle, and I am never without it in the house now. I have told lots of people about it, and they say it helps them, too."—Mrs. J. W. Critchett, 2 Hammond street, Cambridge, Mass.

Holmes Institute May Get Huge Fund For Expansion Work

Warren, Pa., May 3.—(Special).—A movement sponsored by ministers, citizens and philanthropists of New York and Pennsylvania to raise a one-million-dollar endowment fund for expansion of the Holmes institute in Atlanta, established for the training of the colored youth of the south, got under way at an educational mass meeting at the First Presbyterian church (white) Friday night, Professor N. B. Andrews, of New York, national financial agent of the Holmes institute, said in a wire Monday to B. R. Holmes, president.

"There is no institution in the south with an endowment which is making it possible for the worthy colored people to receive a religious, intellectual and industrial education without paying board and tuition except the Holmes institute," said Professor Andrews in a talk at the meeting. Wealthy donors to the education of the colored people of the south must be influenced along this phase of education.

Rev. Stoddard, pastor, made the closing speech and said it was the "duty of the citizens east and north to make liberal donations to colored institutions of the south."

The second meeting will be held in Albany, N. Y., in June. Rev. B. R. Holmes, president of the institute, will deliver the principal address.

BUCKNER PROBES FINDING OF BRIBE ON OFFICER'S DESK

New York, May 3.—(AP)—Investigation of the finding of $9,500 in currency in the desk of a captain of the marine division of the police department last Thursday was carried to the office of United States District Attorney Buckner today after police admitted themselves unable to discover where the money came from.

Captain Hugo Wunsche, who directs the operation of police boats, engaged in pursuing run runners, found the money in an envelope in his desk last Tuesday night. There was no writing on the envelope, he said, and nothing inside but the money.

Belief was expressed that the money might have been placed in the desk by members of the crew of a rum ship seized last week and on which was found memoranda showing alleged payments of large sums of money for protection.

Breakfast Smiles

Foods That Win Them

By JENNY NOURSE Domestic Science Expert

Here's the "change" you crave for breakfast—PUFFED RICE

VARIETY is the important thing in diet. People, young and old, thrive on it—and lag behind without it. Serving the same things too often is a mistake.

That's true chiefly at breakfast. Morning appetites are hard to please. Have food that's "good" for you, that you don't eat for that reason, but eat because you love it.

Puffed Rice is that kind of cereal. Totally and wholly different from any other cereal known, it supplies the great advantage of variety.

It tastes like toasted nutmeats—selected grains of rice steam exploded to 8 times natural size, then richly oven toasted, that crunch like fresh toast in your mouth.

Its flavor is different, its food value is high in the carbohydrate of finest rice; it's the great change your appetite craves. Just try it. Obtain at any grocery store.

Ailsa Mellon's Fiance Will Get $2,500 Salary

DAVID BRUCE'S FATHER, HOWEVER, RICH MAN

Washington, May 3.—Poor Ailsa Mellon! How's she ever going to get along on $2,500 a year?

That is the salary Uncle Sam will pay David K. Bruce, son of Senator William Cabell Bruce, of Maryland, who is to marry the daughter of one of America's richest men, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Young Bruce, whose engagement to Miss Mellon was formally announced yesterday, has been appointed United States vice consul at Rome. He has just been graduated from the state department's foreign service school.

The state department Monday announced his appointment to the Rome vice consularship which will pay $2,500 a year. And if Andrew Mellon's prospective son-in-law does his job well and sticks by Uncle Sam, he may work up to $9,000, the top salary in the consular service.

Twenty-five thousand dollars might buy one of Miss Mellon's evening wraps—and it might not. During her five years here, she has earned the reputation of being one of Washington's best dressed girls.

Black, white and a very pale beige are the favorite colors of Secretary Mellon's daughter. Most of her evening gowns are white or metal cloth. Her prettiest evening wrap is a gorgeous cape of white ermine. She is quite tall and fair, with soft brown hair which she wears parted and drawn back simply into a loose knot at the nape of her neck.

Federal Reserve Board May Help In French Loans

New York, May 3.—(AP)—Participation of the Federal Reserve banks in forthcoming loans or credits to the French government, which have been made possible by the recent debt settlement, is under consideration, it was reported in Wall street today.

Benjamin Strong, governor of the New York Federal Reserve bank, is now in Europe, where he is scheduled to confer with Governor Norman, of the Bank of England, Governor Robineau of the Bank of France and the heads of other European central banks. These meetings, it is understood, will involve the question of improving monetary conditions, particularly in France, with the aid of outside credit.

Wall street has expected for some time that the French government would seek a private loan of about $100,000,000 in New York once the French debt had been settled. Since this borrowing will be largely to fortify the position of the franc for moral effect rather than for actual needs, bankers pointed out that a federal reserve credit would be a distinct advantage.

RECORD RAINFALL DOES BIG DAMAGE IN NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, May 3.—(AP)—Officials estimated tonight that several hundred thousand dollars worth of property damage was caused by a record-breaking rainfall here during a 24-hour period, ending this afternoon. All marks for May precipitation during a day and night were smashed when a gauge of the federal weather bureau revealed a total fall of 9.08 inches between 3:15 p. m. yesterday and the same hour today.

Only once before in the 55 years of the weather bureau's existence was more rain recorded in any 24-hour period. During April of 1883, 9.22 inches of rain fell in that length of time.

Approximately $60,000 worth of damage was suffered by the Southern Baptist hospital.

MACNIDER ATTACKS SMITH BROOKHART, SUPPORTS CUMMINS

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.) Washington, May 3.—In an open letter addressed to The Des Moines Register, at Des Moines, Iowa, Hanford MacNider, assistant secretary of war, today attacked the record of former Senator Brookhart and announced his support of Senator Cummins for the senatorial nomination in the forthcoming Iowa primary.

"One can sympathize with Mr. Brookhart's own farming troubles, but couldn't he do better if he stayed on the farm?" Mr. MacNider asks. "In Washington let's have someone who has something to offer—someone who commands respect—someone who can give Iowa constructive legislation on the floor of the senate. I am for Albert B. Cummins."

Methodist Laymen of Dixie Will Propose Unification Of Financial Activities

Plan To Place Agencies Under Control of General Lay Board; Single Yearly Drive Planned.

Memphis, Tenn., May 3.—(P)—A resolution proposing unification of all financial agencies of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, under control of the general lay activities board tonight was in the hands of the board's memorial committee for presentation to the twentieth quadrennial general conference of the church which opens here Wednesday.

The resolution also provides that all funds for lay activities of the church be budgeted and raised in a single campaign. Heretofore funds have been raised in a series of campaigns for separate agencies.

The resolution was adopted today at a meeting of the laymen's body preparatory to the opening of the general church conference.

This was one of a series of board meetings today.

In the Epworth league board meeting Dr. F. S. Parker, of Nashville, general secretary, reported a membership of more than 300,000 in 8,845 chapters, the largest membership in the history of the church. It is an increase he said, of about 8,800 chapters since the last quadrennial conference held in Hot Springs, Ark., in 1922.

Casual reference was made at this session to the possibility "this may be the last meeting of the Epworth league board as such."

The reference was a proposal, now in the hands of a committee from the general conference, that the Epworth league board, Sunday school board and the educational board be consolidated in one body.

The Epworth league board legislative committee probably will make its recommendations in this matter to the board at tomorrow's session, R. E. Nolner, recording secretary, said.

Bible cause, which is to convene tomorrow, has as its main theme consideration of the proposal for unification of the northern and southern branches of the church.

Dr. C. C. Grimes, presiding elder from the Memphis district, said today that lobby talk seemed to center more about the activities of this board than of any other body connected with the conference.

Dr. Grimes estimated that the total attendance of the conference would be in the neighborhood of approximately 2,500.

Possible election of new bishops, Dr. Grimes said, is in the hands of the committee on episcopacy, which will not meet until the conference proper has convened.

At a meeting of field secretaries today a proposal to change the Epworth league anniversary day was informally discussed but no definite action was taken.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

IN APRIL, 1793, CITIZEN GENET, MINISTER OF THE NEW FRENCH REPUBLIC, ARRIVED IN CHARLESTON.

HE WAS RECEIVED WITH MUCH ENTHUSIASM, WHICH CONVINCED HIM THAT BECAUSE FRANCE HAD HELPED US, ANYTHING HE ASKED OF AMERICA WOULD BE GRANTED.

WHILE BEING ENTERTAINED, GENET PLANNED WITHOUT CONSULTING OUR GOVERNMENT, TO ENLIST AMERICAN SOLDIERS TO FIGHT SPAIN AND OUTFIT AMERICAN PRIVATEERS TO FIGHT ENGLAND, IN VIOLATION OF WASHINGTON'S NEUTRALITY PROCLAMATION.

WHEN WASHINGTON LEARNED OF GENET'S INSOLENCE, HE FORBODE HIM TO SEND OUT ANY MORE PRIVATEERS FROM AMERICAN PORTS.

GENET, IN HIS ANGER, DENOUNCED THE ADMINISTRATION AND BECAME SO OBNOXIOUS IN HIS ATTEMPTS TO INJURE THE PRESIDENT THAT EVEN HIS STAINCHEST SUPPORTERS TURNED FROM HIM.

Gunboats Hunt For Missing Spanish Fliers

Macao, May 3.—The Portuguese gunboat Macao left today to search for Captain Loriga-Taboada and his mechanic, Spanish aviators, who have been missing since they left Hanoi, French Indo-China, Saturday.

It is feared that their plane was forced down in the South China sea.

The gunboat Patria will assist in the search if the fliers are not located soon.

Captain Eduardo Gallarza, pilot of the other Spanish plane flying from Madrid to Manila, arrived here late Saturday, reporting that on the 550-mile flight from Hanoi, mostly over water, he encountered misty weather, which made it difficult to keep on the course.

ALUMINUM PROBE SPEED INCREASED

Pittsburgh, May 3.—(P)—Three score letters and telegrams were admitted to the record today in the federal trade commission investigation of alleged monopolistic practices of the Aluminum Company of America.

Practically every step taken by commission counsel was objected to by company attorneys. Despite many interruptions, the submission of documentary evidence was speeded up during the afternoon.

For the first time since the inquiry opened, a portion of one of the letters in question was made public.

Richard P. Whitley, commission counsel, read a section of a letter dealing with erection of aluminum sheet rolling mills.

He said the letter was being used to support his allegation concerning the attitude of the company to maintain and perpetuate control of the rolling business.

Company counsel objected, asking that the letter be handed to Major W. W. Shepard, examiner for a ruling. He admitted it with the understanding that Whitley would later show it was relevant.

The witness of the day was George R. Gibbons, vice president of the company. He explained that some letters submitted did not exist; answers to some were from word card, telephone and personal visits. Commission counsel produced what they claimed were photostatic copies of some of the missing communications, and these were admitted after Gibbons said they "appeared" to be copies of the letters in question.

Examiner Shepard said he believed all documentary evidence will be admitted within the next two days.

JOHN W. THOMPSON DIES IN ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Mo., May 3.—(P)—John W. Thompson, 64, millionaire railroad contractor, convicted with Colonel Charles E. Forbes, former veteran's bureau head, of conspiracy to defraud the government in hospital contracts, died at his home here early today of heart disease.

Thompson's application for probation from a two-year prison sentence was to have been argued in federal court at Chicago next Monday. Two government physicians examined the contractor here April 6 and reported he was in no condition to serve a prison term. Colonel Forbes is now in Leavenworth penitentiary.

Was Critically Ill.

Thompson had undergone a third operation for hernia at a local hospital March 2, remaining there, critically ill, until his physicians thought it best for him to return home about three weeks ago. Yesterday he was able to sit up for a time. He was conversing with his wife and nurses when death came suddenly shortly after midnight.

The contractor's wealth, estimated by his friends at several million dollars, was gained largely from sand and gravel dredged from the Mississippi river at Proffit's island, two miles above Baton Rouge, La. This business, operated under a lease from the owners, was managed by a brother, R. A. Thompson, of New Orleans.

Thompson's wartime operations included a $3,000,000 contract for construction of a camp near Fort Worth, Texas, for Canadian aviators. He also was interested in cantonment work at two other points in Texas and at Deming, N. M.

Thompson, whose parents came from Ireland in the '60s, was born in Canada. He came to St. Louis in the early '90s, after he had begun his career in Wisconsin as a telegraph operator.

Methodist Board Of Bishops Meets In Washington

Washington, May 3.—(P)—Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church from all parts of the world are in Washington for the opening tomorrow of the semi-annual meeting of the board of bishops to consider the foreign and domestic problems of the church.

The meeting will continue for a week. Coming half way between the quadrennial meeting of the general conference they were considered as of such importance that bishops were called in from the foreign field to give their views of the rapidly changing problems of their jurisdictions.

A tentative check was indicated that only three of the 38 active bishops, Bishop Nelson, of Switzerland; Bishop Mitchell, of the Philippine islands; and Bishop Bast, of Denmark, will be absent.

That consideration of foreign problems would receive first attention was apparent today. Bishop Richardson, of the Atlanta area, secretary of the conference, said that extended discussion would be had on the need for readjustment of church affairs in the face of the growing nationalist movement in foreign countries. This has been chiefly apparent in India, he said, where there is a definite trend on the part of native Christian leaders to take over church leadership to a greater degree than ever before.

INSTALLMENT LXII.
MIST.

The station master looked searchingly at Celia, then he asked: "The William G. Smiths, or the Havelock Smiths, or Widow Smith, Mrs. Ezra P. Smith that is, or . . ."

"The Havelock Smiths," said Celia.

"You're in luck," returned he. "The Havelock Smiths live in the first big house you come to on your right."

He pointed up the shadowy street, with its sparse sprinkling of lamps.

"You'll know it by the extra big grounds and the summer house—a very swell summer house with white columns, just off the driveway, about twenty yards in."

"Thank you ever so much," said Celia, smiling at him again. "Good night."

"Good night, miss," said the station master, and stood staring after her tall figure as it swung away.

"Well, I'll hear all about her tomorrow," he consoled himself as he turned back to the station and his less interesting duties. "Some New York swell, I guess. Them Havelock Smiths is always out after swells and likes to broadcast it when they've landed one. This one's pleasant spoken enough, but, Lord! ain't she some gyrafel!"

Celia walked quickly up the long street through freckles of shadow cast by the young May foliage. She met no one on her way, and it was too chilly for people to be out on the porches or in the gardens. Now and then from behind a lighted window came the tinkle of a piano, or the sound of jazz played on a gramophone. Once a big white cat with

She saw distinctly again the ring he had sent her for Gracie, a black face padded by, bent on some venture of love or war. It startled her for a second; its black face melting into the shadows had made it seem a headless cat.

The wind had fallen at sunset and the night was very still. Its fresh, perfumed breath stole deliciously over her hot face. Frogs were piping in a near meadow.

She walked on and on, her mind lulled by the calm night and the hush that enfolded her after the continuous roar of the train. She would think out what to do when she had reached a secluded place where she could sit down and rest, not that she felt bodily tired, but she needed to be quite relaxed in order to unravel her tangled thoughts. As she walked she was not thinking at all, only letting her consciousness drift gently this way and that, through the present moment; now aware of the frog's plaintive piping, now of the scent of early hyacinths and the dew wet loam from which they sprang, now watching the young moon, scarcely past its first quarter, and already low in the western sky. "A dry moon," farmers would call it, because it tilted so that water would spill from its curve—or was it a "dry moon" only when it lay horizontally like a shallow bowl in profile and so could hold water?

She stopped suddenly. There at last was the summer house of the Havelock Smiths, rising pale and pseudo-classic against the slope of a shaven lawn. The house proper was some distance off. She could only see glimpses of its white walls through crowding trees. Even the summer house was canopied by foliage.

She entered the grounds and crossed over to it. The door gave to her touch and she found herself in a large, round room with windows on all sides.

As her eyes grew accustomed to the dim light, she saw that it was quite empty except for a shabby wicker chair and table. The Smiths evidently used it only in warm weather. Celia thought how lucky this was for her, because had it been really furnished, they would certainly have left the door locked.

She sat her bag upon the one table and sank into the one chair. No sooner was she seated than she had the strange feeling of having suddenly stopped, like a mechanical top that has been wound up very tight and then runs down all at once.

The sensation was not that of fatigue but of leaden inertia. A few times in her life she had had waking dreams in which she could neither move nor think how to make herself move. It had been a horrible feeling and it was like that with her now.

In vain she told herself, "I must think of what I'll do. . . I must think of it." She could not control her mind. It darted about at random, bringing her odd, disconnected scraps . . . the memory of a face seen in childhood and long since forgotten, now as clear as a small, detailed painting held close to her eyes. . . She could see the very mole that had frightened her so at five years old, and the hairs that curled from it like spider legs. . . Then the swing in the old cherry tree at Donovan's home in Connecticut. . . then herself in the swing. . . Up she flew till the cool cherries bumped her face. . . then back to Donovan, who sent her up again with a grunting push. . . Now the puppy her father had killed. . . its tiny pinkened teeth. . . its limp tail. . . Now her father's face. . . thrust out at her from hunched shoulders. . . with reddened, furious eyes and bristling rust-red beard. . . She smelled again the horrible mixture of stale tobacco and whisky that had been one in her mind with fear. . . Then a blank. . . Then another face. . . The face of Soeur Marie-Joseph. . . She saw the south courtyard of the convent and the nuns about their little charcoal oven. . . Now the scent was that of stewing peaches. . .

"I must think . . . the train for Boston leaves at half past ten tomorrow. . . No, the train for New York leaves at half past ten tonight. . . I must decide. . ."

Now she said herself and Soeur Marie-Joseph walking in the convent wood. . . She came out into the field and there was a tall, slight figure, standing by the brook, waiting for them. . . a figure like the silhouette of the stork in her nursery. . . "I'm afraid I can't let you cut off your hair," he was saying, "because, though you'd be more comfortable now, you might be sorry then. . ."

She saw distinctly again the ring he had sent her for Gracie. . . Then she saw Gracie. . . Then Hilary's face again, small, distinct, like a perfect miniature. All the scenes and people that were thus shown to her by her haphazard memory, were small and painfully distinct. . . which tiny moving pictures used to be shown, when Edison first invented them.

Hilary's face came oftenest now. . . always kindly, always with that half-amused, half-indulgent smile that she had so resented. . . Why had she resented it? . . . Even this she couldn't think out clearly. . . It came again, and now it looked cold and contemptuous. . . Why?

Maytag Officials Meet
In Business and Banquet

F. L. Maytag, of Newton, Iowa, principal owner and president of the Maytag Washing Machine company, was principal speaker at an elaborate banquet of district and division managers of the Maytag company here Monday night.

More than 40 officials, district and division managers and others connected with the local branch of the Maytag company, manufacturers and distributors, will end the two-day session tonight.

Monday's sessions, ending with the banquet at 7:30 o'clock, were well attended and many interesting and profitable talks were given in the morning. Practically all of the afternoon was devoted to a sightseeing tour to Stone Mountain and other points.

At an entertainment program and souvenirs were given to each member present at the banquet. Speakers on the program were W. S. McCarter, Atlanta representative; J. J. Albright, southeastern district manager; Frank J. Merriam, president of the Southern Ruralist company; James Sterling, first division manager; W. S. Siler, of Milwaukee, Wis.; C. Y. House, president Motor Parts corporation; Paul A. Scott, branch manager of the Philadelphia, Pa., branch; S. Clarke, Atlanta representative, and others.

In his address, Mr. Maytag, head of a $200,000 corporation, outlined briefly his lights in the development of the washing machine industry, especially during the past five years. More than 30 years ago, F. L. Maytag, then an Illinois farmer, began selling farm implements at $50 per month. After about two years as a salesman he, with two partners, established a $24,000 corporation and pioneered the first self-cleaning washing machine in the world. After about nine years with the washing machine, the company in 1911 designed the first washing machine, with the swinging wringer. As development progressed, the old design was changed in 1910 so as to run with an attachable gasoline motor. In 1922 the industry had grown until a new machine was designed which is still selling on the market today and proving a great success.

Since the development of the latest washing machine, the company has grown by leaps and bounds and last year more than $35,000,000 in business was done by the Maytag company. It has been estimated that business will reach the $50,000,000 mark this year.

More than 3,700 people are employed in the factory and the daily output is 1,050 machines. Alternations are under way so that the daily direct connection with Tampa and the west coast of Florida and is in line with recent announcements by Seaboard officials.

The article says that the proposed extension from Gadsden southward would traverse a rich section of Alabama, crossing counties of Etowah, Calhoun, Clay, Randolph and Lee.

Lakewood Stage
Will Be Largest,
Says Oscar Mills

Construction was begun Monday at Lakewood Amusement park on the largest outdoor stage in the United States, it was announced Monday night by Oscar Mills, secretary of the Southeastern Fair association, which operates the park.

Not in this press agent's yarn. It's said to be the actual fact. The structure will be in two main sections, one on permanent foundations between the grandstand and the edge of the race track and the other a portable section, extending over the race track. The entire platform will give room for as many as 2,500 people to take part in pageants and other exhibitions in front of the grandstand, which is to be rearranged before the fair October 2-9, to seat 10,000 people, instead of 7,500 as at present.

Construction of the first section is to be rushed by crews of carpenters working day and night this week in order to have the platform in readiness for the Mothers' day concert to be given at the park Sunday afternoon, Mr. Mills said. The portable section of the race track and the other American Savings Bank building, Atlanta, Ga., the investment about $60,000.

SEABOARD BUYS
T. A. & G., REPORT

Birmingham, Ala., May 3.—(AP)—The Birmingham News today says that there is a well defined report in railroad circles here that the Seaboard Air Line railway has acquired control of the Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia railroad, which extends from Chattanooga to Gadsden.

The newspaper article says also that it is reported that the Seaboard completes extending its lines southward from Gadsden to Truett, Calhoun county, thence to Columbus, Ga., where connections will be made with the Seaboard's branch line from Columbus to Albany, Ga. At Truett, a connection would be made with the Birmingham-Atlanta line. The article continues by saying that from Albany the Seaboard would probably construct a line to a Florida point where connection would be made with a new short line already authorized. This, the newspaper says, would give direct connection with Tampa and the west coast of Florida and is in line with recent announcements by Seaboard officials.

The article says that the proposed extension from Gadsden southward would traverse a rich section of Alabama, crossing counties of Etowah, Calhoun, Clay, Randolph and Lee.
